Wilson Says U.S. Or Russ Could Be Ahead

DETROIT (AP)—Only a few months separate the United States and Russia in missile development, former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said Monday night.

"Whether the Russians or we are ahead in missile development, I don't believe anyone can say with certainty," he said.

Russia said last summer it is capable of producing intercontinental missiles that could be fired to any place on earth.

"There is no reason to doubt their ultimate ability to do this," Wilson said. "Our scientists and engineers are convinced that we can do the same, and we could claim that the missiles we have tested to date have proven to our satisfaction also that this can be done."

Wilson, who quit last month after serving five years as secretary of defense, addressed a dinner held in his honor. A former president of General Motors, Wilson lives in Birmingham, Mich., a suburb of Detroit.

'Jittery'

He said he got the idea from newspapers, radio and television that "my fellow Americans are getting a bit jittery and unrealistic about the satellites and their implication in the struggle between the East and West."

This edgy feeling, he said, comes from the realization that "we can now be attacked through the air by bombers and missiles from foreign shores."

Russia's Sputniks are a dramatic reminder to the United States that the oceans no longer provide a protective barrier, he said.

But he added, "neither Sputnik I nor Sputnik II is in any sense a military weapon."

Russia beat the United States into outer space because the "Russians obviously decided to combine their satellite and missile projects and use the large rocket engines they were developing for missiles to launch their satellites," Wilson said.

At the same time, he said, the United States separated its satellite project from its ballistic missile development and gave top priority to the ballistic missiles problem.

Concurred

"Many people outside the Pentagon, including a number of scientists, concurred in this decision," Wilson said, adding that the United States has rocket engines many times more powerful than the one being used in work on its satellite.

Wilson said there was "some validity" to criticism of so-called inter-service rivalry—but only the "senseless rivalry and not the honest competition."

"What may seem like certain duplications in the ballistic missile field is really an effort to make more rapid progress and have some insurance on alternate ways of doing things," he said.

Blessing

Russia's leap into outer space may turn into a blessing of sorts, Wilson said, by making the United States more aware of the need for defense appropriations.

"I believe that as a nation we were getting too complacent last summer when the Congress cut the defense appropriation of 30 1/2 billion dollars originally requested to less than 36 billion dollars," said Wilson.

Minnesota Crash Fatal To Omahan

RUSH CITY, Min. (AP)—Three persons, one from Omaha, died Monday night of injuries suffered when the car in which they were riding overturned in a water-filled ditch near here.

Dead were Michael Herzog, Omaha, Mrs. Bertha Reiborth of Duluth, Minn., and her son, Saul, 19.

Driver of the car, Jerry Gershogol, 18, Duluth, who was slightly hurt, told a highway patrolman he lost control of the car as the three youths headed back to the University of Minnesota from a holiday weekend in Duluth.

Rush City is about 40 miles north of Minneapolis.

END OF LONG JOURNEY NEAR

A 5,000-mile canoe trip from Denver, Colo., is about to come to an end as this picture was taken just short of the Oldtown, Maine, docks. In the center canoe are Earl Rickers, 29, of Chester, Calif., and Gerald Hewey, 27, of Cape Elizabeth, Me. On right are Bengt Soderstrom, 32, and Ed Vestal, 29, both of Aspen, Colo. Escorting them are Indians from the Penobscot tribe of Oldtown. See story on Page 19. (AP Wire-photo.)

Demos Set Meeting To Talk Platform, Staff

... 'Early Start For Victory In 1958'

Democrats in Nebraska plan to establish a platform and resolutions committee to report at the 1958 state convention and to consider a year-round finance program and employment of a full-time executive secretary.

Those items are on the agenda for a meeting called Monday by Democratic State Chairman Willard Townsend of Lincoln.

The conference, sponsored by the State Central Committee, will begin at 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 22, at the Cornhusker Hotel.

'Strong Candidates'

"This promises to be one of the largest off-year conferences held by the Democrats," Townsend said, and "it is hoped that this will result in helping to bring forth strong candidates for all offices."

The state chairman added: "The polls report that the trend has been to our side. We are going to start early to make sure of a Democratic victory in Nebraska in 1958."

Chairman Townsend and State Treasurer Leo J. Beck Sr. of Lincoln will make reports at the conference.

National Committeeman Bernad J. Boyle of Omaha will speak at noon.

National Program

Jay E. Larsen, regional representative to the Democratic National Committee, will present the program of the National Committee.

A State Central Committee meeting is scheduled to follow the conference, to take action on recommendations that may be made.

Laika's Fate A Puzzle

Russ Physicist —'She Must Be Dead'

MOSCOW (AP)—A top Soviet physicist said Monday night Laika "must be dead." But Premier Nikolai Bulganin said the little space dog was still alive at last reports from Sputnik II Sunday.

"We don't put everything in the (Sputnik) communique," Bulganin said. "And anyway we don't make too much fuss over the dog."

Both Bulganin and the physicist, Dmitri V. Skobeltsyn, talked at a Swedish Embassy reception with reporters seeking comment on a general assumption here that drugs mixed with the last of Laika's food had put her to death.

Another Soviet authority, a scientist, had said she died Friday, the sixth day of her flight within the half-ton satellite. A Tass communique Sunday said the radio had failed and biological and medical observations were concluded.

Another statement by the Soviet news agency late Monday contained no mention of the dog.

Heartbeat

Bulganin told the newsmen, however, telemetric transmission from Sputnik II Sunday included reports on Laika's pulse, heartbeat and blood pressure.

(A Tass dispatch from Moscow to Yugoslav newspapers said Laika "probably has been catapulted from the satellite and a search for her is under way on Soviet territory" so Soviet scientists can examine her body.)

A special dispatch to Borba, the major Yugoslav Communist newspaper, said opium mixed with the last of her food put her to sleep three days ago.)

Skobeltsyn, head of the Soviet Institute of Physics, was asked at the reception for his opinion about Laika.

"I think she is dead," he said. "I don't know for certain but by now she must be dead."

Man Into Space

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. John P. Hagen, head of Project Vanguard, said Monday the United States should develop a well coordinated program aimed at sending man into space.

The Vanguard project, devoted to the launching of a fully instrumented earth satellite, is a step in that direction, Hagen told a news conference.

He estimated it would be "years" before a man could be sent up with any chance of getting back to earth safely, and that meanwhile experiments with animals must continue.

Hagen said he personally would prefer to send up a rat rather than a dog because, he said, a rat is more like a human physiologically. A monkey is even more like a human, he added.

Vanguard's chief said one of the problems of a manned space vehicle is that of re-entry into the earth's denser atmosphere, where friction will cause intense heat.

Vehicle Wings

The best way to get a man back into the heavier atmosphere, Hagen went on, would be to put wings on the vehicle. He envisaged a vehicle 30 or 40 feet long and weighing at least 2,000 or 3,000 pounds. Sputnik II's weight has been given by the Russians as 1,120 pounds.

Hagen said a satellite that heavy implies a rocket thrust "far in excess of what we have today."

He told newsmen he didn't know when the Army would attempt to launch a satellite with its modified Jupiter-C missile. The Army was brought into the satellite program only last Friday. If Project Vanguard had been given access to a launcher like the Jupiter-C two years ago, Hagen said, it "would probably have had a satellite in the air" before the Russians.

Hagen said he assumed the size of the Army's satellite would be somewhere between the 6-inch sphere that Vanguard plans to experiment with next month and the 20-inch globe it is scheduled to fire into space sometime in March.

HENRY VAUCK

Ex-Judge, Wife Die In Car-Train Crash

Prominent Clay County Couple Killed In Sutton Main Street Accident

Lincoln Star Special

SUTTON, Neb.—Former Clay County Judge Henry Vauck, 81, and his wife, Alice, 73, prominent longtime residents of this community, both met instant death here Monday afternoon as their auto collided with a Burlington freight train.

County Sheriff H. J. Hoyt, who investigated, said Mr. Vauck apparently failed to see the west-bound through freight as he was driving south on Sutton's main street.

The Vauck auto collided with the train's engine; the sheriff said. Force of the impact threw the auto into a nearby parked boxcar, derailing it, Sheriff Hoyt reported. Warning lights at the crossing, which divides Sutton's business district, were operating at the time, investigating officers said.

Lincolnite Engineer

Authorities identified the train's engineer as Orval Marlow, 1037 South 13th, Lincoln.

Time of the tragedy was set at 3:10 p.m.

The Vaucks, who lived nearly all of their married life in Clay and Fillmore counties, observed their 50th wedding anniversary in March, 1952.

Mr. Vauck served as a country school teacher in Fillmore County for seven years, and from 1904 until 1910 was Fillmore County superintendent of schools. For the next 20 years he was a farmer in Fillmore and Clay Counties, and in 1929 was elected judge of Clay County, serving 12 years. He had also been a member of the Clay Center school board.

Active In Farm Groups

Active in the promotion of farm organization work, he had been a member of the Farm Bureau and the Farmers Co-operative Elevator board.

A survivor of the blizzard of 1888, Mr. Vauck organized a reunion of his classmates and their rural school teacher in 1938 in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the famed snowstorm.

Surviving the Vaucks are three sons, Earl of Sutton, Edward of Los Angeles, Calif., and Burnette of Lansing, Mich.; a daughter, Mrs. Orren L. Graves of Lincoln; 11 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

The deaths raised the 1957 Nebraska traffic toll to 250 compared to 261 on Nov. 11, 1956.

Teen-Age Couple Swipe Airplane For First Ride

... Pair Slightly Hurt After Crash

CHESTERTON, Ind. (AP)—A teen-age Sturgis, Mich., couple escaped with relatively slight injuries Monday in the crash landing of a stolen plane—the first in which either had ridden.

Fred Harter, 14, brought the plane down before daylight on the Lake Michigan beach near here, 50 miles from Sturgis, when the engine began sputtering for lack of fuel.

He escaped with three broken teeth. Diane Ayotte, his attractive 13-year-old girl friend, suffered a broken nose.

The girl had been placed in a foster home recently. Harter was trying to avoid being sent to a reform school for car theft.

The youngsters decided to run off and did it the hard way. Michigan police said the blue Jean-clad couple slipped into the Sturgis airport and took off in a light (Er-coupe) private plane.

In Doctors' Hospital at nearby Michigan City, Harter said all he knew about planes he learned from a book he read two years ago.

Engine Damaged

"I didn't have any idea where we were going," the boy said. He told of flying west at 600 feet until he reached the lake, then following the beach until he ran out of fuel. The plane's nose wheel collapsed in the soft sand, and the propeller and engine were damaged.

Indiana state troopers said Harter should have read a little further in the flying book. He and the girl probably would not have been hurt at all if they had fastened their seat belts.

A hiker found the plane. Police located the blood-smeared couple, huddled in front of a fire they had built in an unoccupied beach cabin.

"I thought I'd be real scared going flying, but I wasn't," Diane told newsmen at the hospital. "Fred's real good for not having flown before."

Post Of Adviser Offered

Demo Would Be No. 3 Man In Big Push By West

By WARREN ROGERS JR., WASHINGTON (AP)—

President Eisenhower has asked Adlai Stevenson to accompany him to the NATO meeting in Paris as No. 3 man in charge of America's effort to revitalize allied opposition to Soviet expansion, it was reported Monday night.

Stevenson so far hasn't said yes and he hasn't said no.

But his response, according to informed sources, has been to ask questions and keep the door open to further discussion.

The request went to Stevenson, these sources said, through Secretary of State Dulles about Oct. 25. That was a three-day visit to Washington of British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Eisenhower and Stevenson

er and Macmillan agreed the North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) allies face a long haul, wartime-like pull, to overcome the Russian threat. They agreed to try to launch at the Dec. 16 NATO meeting in Paris a new NATO concept of greater co-operation and sharing of responsibility among the Western allies.

Highly informed sources said Dulles approached Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate in 1952 and 1956, speaking for "the President and myself."

Adviser

These sources said Dulles asked Stevenson to become what Dulles had been during the Truman administration: The foreign policy adviser from the opposition party.

The sources said Stevenson was requested to go with Eisenhower and Dulles to Paris after a thorough briefing on top secret State Department material. They said he would, under the original offer, have been put virtually in charge of the new NATO program—ranked only by Eisenhower and Dulles.

However, the sources said, Stevenson responded cautiously. They said he wanted to know more about the responsibilities intended for him. As a result, the sources added, the job was tailored somewhat to fit what sounded like Stevenson's idea of an advisory post with less broad horizons.

These sources emphasized that the original offer still stood, particularly concerning an expanded concept of NATO and including the trip to Paris.

Concerned

Dulles was reported to be concerned about Stevenson's delay in making up his mind. Not too much time remains for Stevenson, if he is willing, to step into a State Department role, brief himself properly, and go to Paris in December. Stevenson, who was in New York Monday night, declined comment on reports he had been approached by the administration.

The sources said Stevenson's job would carry more activity than that of the late former Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia, who, after retiring from the Senate, became a special presidential assistant on NATO affairs. But ill health prevented George from doing much work or from undertaking an advisory role which went beyond NATO matters.

John W. Dowling Jr., 62, Hamilton mortician, suffered a fatal heart ailment while tracking through the mountains to reach the youth.

New Mansion Proves Big Job For First Lady

By BETTY PERSON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's first lady, Mrs. Victor E. Anderson, has spent countless hours in the past two years going over the myriad details involved in building the new governor's mansion.

Expected to be ready for occupancy early next year, the mansion is now being painted inside in preparation for final decorating.

Gov. and Mrs. Anderson and members of the State Building Commission sat down with Lincoln Architect Selmer A. Solheim in the fall of 1955 and started drawing plans for the future home of Nebraska's governors and their families.

Mrs. Anderson said they went "over and over and over" the plans "trying to think of everything that make the mansion as convenient as possible to accommodate future governors' families."

When it was time to raze the old mansion, Mrs. Anderson had to go through it to decide what furnishings could be used for the new home, and see to the disposition of the remaining articles.

The Nebraska State Historical Society had first choice of the furnishings which could not be used in the new mansion, and the remainder was sold at public auction.

Early this year when John B. Peacock of Omaha had been commissioned as interior decorator for the mansion, Gov. and Mrs. Anderson began a long series of weekly trips to Omaha to consult with him on the furnishings, and he has made many trips to Lincoln as various questions arose.

Mrs. Anderson said the governor always accompanied her on these consultations to help in the selection of furnishings, "and especially to watch the price strings."

It was decided Mrs. Anderson relates, that the state drawing room and state dining room should be formal in decoration as a fitting background for receptions whose guests can number from 75 to 300 persons.

The choice of decorating motif for the drawing room revolved around the one really good piece of furniture they were able to salvage from the old mansion. This is an empire sofa which has been described as a "very valuable antique."

Mrs. Anderson said, "There was so little of any real value, we felt this definitely should be used."

It was on this basis they determined the empire and regency theme for the formal drawing room.

All of the paneling and the marble fireplace in the Governor's Library came from the old mansion. The kitchen fixtures and appliances from the old mansion also will be used in the new one.

The furnishings for the family rooms and bedrooms of the new mansion have been designed to give beauty, comfort and convenience to its occupants.

Carving Praised
Mrs. Anderson had special words of praise for the work of Keats Lorenz of Lincoln who has carved most of the woodwork used throughout the mansion. "We are so pleased with the beautiful carving, including the mantel for the family living room," she commented.

Commenting on the working relationship between herself, the architect and the decorator, Mrs. Anderson said, "I think we've gotten along beautifully."

"We are all interested in doing the very best we can with the money available," she continued. "While we hope, and have worked very hard, to try to please everyone, we know this probably can't be accomplished because everyone has different tastes."

They Did The Work
Mrs. Anderson said, "I certainly don't want to take away any credit from Mr. Solheim or Mr. Peacock. While I've gone over everything with them, they are the ones who have done the work."

Nebraska's first lady also commended the members of the Building Commission who have gone over the details of every part of the mansion.

"One feels a great responsibility for this sort of undertaking," she stated, adding that she feels it's more of a responsibility than if it were one's own home, also because a governor's mansion is "used so differently than an ordinary home."

Noting that governors are called upon to entertain people from all over the state and country, Mrs. Anderson said, "It will be nice to have something Nebraska can be proud of when receiving these guests."

Her opinion of the future home of the Andersons and their successors as Nebraska's first family can be summarized in two words: "Very attractive."

3 Killed, Fourth Injured As Jet Trainers Collide

SELMA, Ala. (INS)—Three officers were killed Monday and another was injured when a pair of Craig Air Force Base T-33 jet trainers collided in mid air near Selma.

The dead were instructor pilots Lt. James Bell of Greensboro, N.C., and Lt. Charles Radcliff of Norfolk, Va., and Bell's student passenger, Lt. Col. Glade Bilby of Newport, R.I.

Radcliff's student passenger, Maj. Vincent Haneman of Kettering, O., bailed out after the collision and escaped with minor injuries.

A witness to the crash said the planes were flying in a four-craft formation. He added: "They seemed to merge together and then fall in a ball of flame." The wreckage was found over a mile area near the Alabama River, eight miles northeast of Selma.

Auto Output For 1957 Shows Gain

DETROIT (AP)—Auto makers are boosting their output of 1958 model cars. They accounted for 137,086 assemblies last week against 125,851 the preceding week.

So far this year 5,171,883 passenger cars have been built against 4,806,824 in the like 1956 period.

1st Prop-Jet U.S. Airliner Starts Tests

BURBANK, Calif. (INS)—Lockheed Aircraft Co. rolled its first Electra, America's first prop-jet transport plane, out of final assembly Monday.

The 400-plus mile-per-hour plane which Lockheed hopes will be the first American built turbine-age airliner to see service, was displayed briefly for employees and then transferred to flight test engineering.

The first flight date was not announced, but Lockheed said the first four models are slated for extensive testing aimed at Civil Aeronautics Administration certification by next Sept. 30.

American, Eastern, National, KLM Royal Dutch, Braniff, Western Garuda Indonesian, Cathay Pacific, Pacific Southwest and Australia's Ansett Ana Airlines already have placed orders for 141 Electras.

Lockheed said a total of more than four million engineering man-hours already have been devoted to the plane, which is equipped with four 3,750-horsepower Allison turbine engines and will carry between 66 and 91 passengers, depending upon the seating arrangement used.

The Electra is 104½ feet long and has a wingspan of 99 feet. The first planes are expected to be delivered to Eastern Airline in October, 1958.

The Electra is expected to provide speedy passenger service to many smaller cities which will be bypassed by other jet-age airliners because of short landing fields and other considerations.

Kennedy Says It's Up To President To Pull U.S. Ahead

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said Monday night it is up to the President himself—and not special assistants—to pull the United States ahead of Russia in outer-space achievements.

Kennedy, a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, spoke to Utah Young Democrats.

He said President Eisenhower made a good move in appointing Dr. James Killian of Massachusetts Institute of Technology to ride herd on outer-space research. But he said even this was tardy.

Not Enough
"The President's proposals, while good as far as they go," he said, "must still prove that they are capable of closing the gap . . . No special assistant and no new act of Congress is enough."

"Only the President of the United States has the power and the facts and the position to lead us through these critical years," Kennedy told reporters here, as he has elsewhere, that he is concentrating only on running for re-election to the Senate in 1958, in spite of suggestions that recent speeches in the South and West could be an early start in a presidential campaign.

Kennedy said the United States is running behind Russia not only in outer-space developments but also in other military fields, such as jet engines and fuels.

Full Self-Government
KINGSTON, Jamaica (INS)—Thousands of Jamaicans cheered when Gov. Sir Hugh Foot read a royal proclamation giving the island complete internal self-government. Beginning Monday, which is a holiday with parades and other celebrations, the island will be ruled by a council of 12 ministers headed by Norman Manley.

8 Of 10 Kearney Inmates Returned

KEARNEY, Neb. — Authorities Monday night still sought two Kearney Boys Training School runaways who were among 10 who fled the institution Sunday night.

Training School officials reported the 10 boys somehow managed to open the front door of the institution to make their getaway. They ranged from 15 to 17 years of age.

Five of the 10 were picked up in Kearney later Sunday night and three others were found Monday in a corn field at Elm Creek, 20 miles west of Kearney.

LeMay Tries For Non-Stop Jet Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force vice chief of staff, is attempting to set a new world's non-stop record for jet aircraft without refueling in a flight to Buenos Aires, the Air Force announced Monday night.

LeMay is piloting a KC135 jet Stratotanker on the 6,300 mile flight from Westover Air Force Base in Massachusetts to Buenos Aires.

The flight via Fortaleza, Brazil, is being made without aerial refueling and is hailed as a critical test of the new jet Stratotanker in its utility role as a jet speed, high-altitude global transport, the Air Force said.

Gen. LeMay left Westover at 4:48 p.m. EST Monday. He is expected to land at Buenos Aires at approximately 5:21 a.m. EST Tuesday.

Gen. LeMay is flying to Buenos Aires to participate in Argentina's observance of National Aviation Week.

LeMay, 50, became vice chief of staff last April. Prior to that he had commanded the Strategic Air Command for more than eight years.

He began his military flying career as a fighter pilot, switched to bombers and pioneered in long range aerial navigation studies. At 12:04 a.m. EST (Tuesday) the plane was reported over Fortaleza, Brazil.

With LeMay is a normal crew of 18.

Riots Broken

MADRAS, India (AP)—Police in Kerala, India's only Communist-governed state, used tear gas and riot sticks to break up a Socialist inspired demonstration in the village of Kattampalli, near Cannanore. Forty-nine people were taken to hospitals with injuries, including two opposition members of the state legislative assembly.

Don't Be Too Quick To Blame Satellite Trouble On Schools

... Dr. Watkins Tells Homebuilders

"Someone had to be blamed because the United States is behind in the satellite race, but people should think twice before they blame our public school system." These were the words of Dr. Steven N. Watkins, superintendent of the Lincoln Public Schools as he addressed the Lincoln Home Builders Assn. Monday evening.

"What a waste it would be if we tried to make all our students scientists or engineers," Watson said. "We're still in an America where the freedom of choice is a sacred thing."

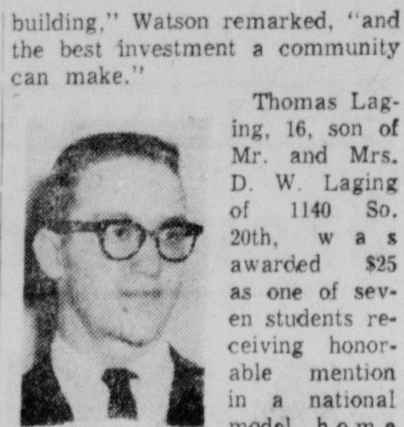

Can't Tell Them
"Our top students are as good as any in the world, but it is not our place to tell them they have to enter a certain field," he added.

Speaking on population growth in Lincoln, Watson reported that by 1960 6,000 more students are expected to be enrolled in the Lincoln public schools.

Two junior high schools are now being built, Watson said, and added that "probably two new elementary schools will have to be constructed in the near future."

Watson reported that the cost of schools in the Lincoln system has averaged $11.77 per square foot of floor space, commenting that this is considerably less than the cost of most public buildings which average about $20.

'Best Bargain'
"This is the best bargain you can get anywhere in a public building," Watson remarked, "and the best investment a community can make."

Lagging
sored by the National Assn. of Home Builders.

Superintendent Watkins received a plaque from the national organization for Lagging's school, Southeast High.

Farmer Killed

INWOOD, Ia. (AP)—Floyd M. Scott, 64, a Parker, S.D., farmer, was killed when the car he was driving skidded off U.S. 18 and overturned about a mile and a half west of here.

His wife, Grace, 63, was taken to the Canton-Inwood Hospital here with undetermined injuries.

New Ulcer Treatment

MONTREAL (AP)—Dr. H. S. Morton, Montreal surgeon, told a regional conference of the American Psychiatric Assn., here: "We may eventually cure ulcers through psychiatric treatment . . . we know the stomach reacts to emotions and we are now measuring this reaction." The instrument is the electrogastragraph, which measures impulses from the stomach.

Not A Single Observation Of Satellites Received From Armed Forces At Observatory

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Not a single observation of the Russian satellites has ever been received from the U.S. Army, Navy or Air Force, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Monday night.

Sputniks I and II are orbiting the world in such a way they will be visible only in the far North for the next two weeks.

Several days ago Smithsonian officials indicated they would like observations from Distant Early Warning stations in the far North or from airplanes or from ships in the north Atlantic.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple, Smithsonian director, said no reports had been received from the armed forces. He declined to say just how they had been asked to aid in observations.

He also would not speculate to newsmen on why no reports had been received.

Asked if such reports would be welcome, he said: "We would certainly welcome reports from any source whatsoever."

Smithsonian is the headquarters for visual and optical tracking of U.S. satellites under Project Vanguard. No sightings have been reported to the Smithsonian in the past two days. The last one was Saturday from Sydney, Australia.

The satellites can be observed only when they shine by reflected sunlight either just before sunrise or just after sunset. At the present time the satellites are crossing the United States in all regions where moonwatch teams are located in either the dark of night or the daytime.

Despite the dearth of reports, Dr. Whipple said he had "no doubts the satellites still were orbiting the earth, if only because they are observing the laws of physics."

Smithsonian has predicted the first Sputnik's rocket would plunge to earth in flames about Dec. 11. Dr. Whipple said he still stuck to that decision, plus or minus three days.

The smaller 184 pound sphere with its radio and dead batteries would probably last longer by several weeks because it presented less drag to the atmosphere, he said.

Dr. Whipple said Smithsonian ought to be able to tell the probable death hour of the rocket about 24 hours in advance.

problem is serious. Weightlessness already has been achieved for brief periods of 30 or 40 seconds in rocket planes flying a ballistic arc.

"Some of the flyers experienced nausea similar to seasickness. But half the subjects were unaffected."

Reds 'Lying'

CHESTER, England (AP)—A British general said he believes the Russians are not giving correct information about the Sputniks.

Lt. Gen. Sir E. O. Herbert, commander in chief, British Western Command, told a dinner of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, "we want to remember that the gentlemen on the other side of the curtain never, by any chance, speak the truth for truth's sake. If they do, it will only be for some particular purpose."

Ballroom Dancing Slump Blame Put On Princess Margaret

LONDON (INS)—Princess Margaret's love of rock 'n' roll was blamed for the slump in teaching ballroom dancing.

In an article headed "No Bouquets for Margaret," the official organ of the Midland Association of Teachers of Dancing said many dance teachers had fallen on hard times, with revenue dropping 27 per cent compared to 1956.

The publication said that until last year, rock 'n' roll was not respectable, "but all this suddenly changed when someone discovered that Margaret likes rock 'n' roll and approved of it. From that moment there was no more censure."

Plane Carrying 7 Crash Lands On Ross Ice Shelf

McMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (Tuesday) (AP)—A Navy plane with seven men aboard made a forced landing on the Ross Ice Shelf 160 miles from McMurdo Tuesday after one engine failed. All aboard the twin-engine Neptune were reported safe.

The plane was flying from Little America to McMurdo when the landing was made.

The mishap left McMurdo without an adequate rescue plane. Two other Neptunes are disabled at the pole and Liv stations. Another Neptune is awaiting repairs at this base.

The only operating Navy plane at McMurdo is an Otter, which does not have enough range for rescue work. Four Air Force Globemasters operating from McMurdo are unable to land on the ice shelf.

New Engine

The downed plane probably will need a new engine, Navy spokesmen said.

The planes disabled at the pole and Liv bases also need engines. Replacement of engines at such remote points means that hoisting equipment as well as the motors themselves must be flown in. The necessary equipment must be by Globemaster and then either dropped from the big Air Force planes or landed by Navy planes at the site.

The plane stranded at the pole station has been awaiting a new engine since Oct. 26. The craft at Liv has been disabled since Nov. 8. Two Navy replacement planes have been waiting to leave Christchurch for McMurdo.

Flu Bug Settles Into Moderate Absence Pace

The flu settled down to keeping a moderate number of Lincoln students absent from school Monday.

There were 12.62 per cent of the students absent from the Lincoln Public Schools, compared with 16.6 Friday. Only Eastridge and Pershing reported slightly more than 20 per cent absent. Fifty-five teachers were out.

Holy Family school was opened Monday. It had been closed Friday because of teachers being ill.

Lincoln General Hospital reported no unusual influx of Asian flu cases, although there has been an upswing in upper respiratory cases.

At St. Elizabeth Hospital the number of respiratory cases has decreased slightly during the past week.

Dixie Publishers Reminded Of Job In Racial Issue

BOCA RATON, Fla. (INS)—The Southern Newspaper Publishers Association was reminded of its "responsibilities" Monday in the explosive racial problems gripping the region, and was warned that efforts are being made to curtail freedom of the press.

The publishers, representing 131 daily newspapers, heard Florida Gov. Leroy Collins declare that "the South is at one of history's crossroads."

He said: "We can either miss our greatest opportunity and go blindly down a road of turmoil and frustration or we can seize the opportunity to clear the emotional atmosphere and undertake our rightful responsibilities."

No Avail

The governor said "screaming abuse at the Supreme Court will avail us nothing. . . . We must find a way of right and reason under law. As publishers of newspapers in this troubled region, you have an unequalled opportunity—and a responsibility as well—to develop and defend a public atmosphere free of racial fears and bigotry."

A special SNPA committee headed by Maynard R. Ashworth, of the (Columbus, Ga.) Ledger-Enquirer warned of a growing threat to the American heritage of freedom of the press.

The committee said it was sure "all publishers are aware" of the threat and are doing their utmost to combat it.

Psychiatric Tally Sheet

The 1956 collision of the Swedish liner Stockholm and the Italian liner Andrea Doria, which sunk, provided two psychiatrists with a once-in-a-lifetime chance to observe human reaction to disaster. The two psychiatrists were passengers aboard one of the rescue ships which picked up the Doria survivors.

One reaction, according to the doctors, among the survivors was emotional regression wherein the survivors went back to a childlike state of dependency upon others. Their emotions became "anesthetized" as a protection against further mental injury.

After this phase wore off, the survivors became talkative and they would tell their story over and over again to anybody who would lend an ear. Perhaps here the doctors have explained the female affliction for long post-mortems on their latest operation.

The doctors reported also that pre-conceived prejudices formed the basis for venting of anger among the survivors. Survivors blamed the sinking of the ship on the Italians because of a pre-conceived notion that Swedish sailors are faultless and dependable while the Italian sailors are childlike and irresponsible.

This, the doctors said, satisfied the essential human urge to find a scapegoat for the tragedy. Here, perhaps, is a partial explanation of the criticism leveled against Russia for sending a dog up in its second earth satellite. Defeated in the race into outer space, some excuse had to be found or some criticism leveled at the victor. In this case, the dog in the satellite provided a touching and easy road of attack.

Safety Valve At Work

Washington is authority for the announcement that 15 per cent of the nation's 1957 corn crop will go under government storage at federal support prices.

That is to say, more than a half million bushels will be held off the market while producers settle for an average of $1.40 a bushel for compliance corn and $1.10 a bushel for non-compliance corn.

The half million bushel surplus is estimated as the excess of production over the expected consumption for livestock feeds, export and commercial demand.

While there are many who will criticize a food production industry whose continuing surpluses embarrass the economy and levy a price on the public, their case does not extend to the point of abandonment of either a federal price support program or public warehousing of transitory surpluses. There is a seldom seen value in the existing program. In times of surplus it is wise and cheaper to reserve an overabundance from the market. It is not difficult to imagine what would happen to the grain farmer, and the meat industry as well, if the 1957 corn crop were dumped on the market for what it would bring. The effect would be ruinous to both and combined would effect a dangerous blow to the general economy.

Any improved farm program of the future will deal more effectively with original production and will lay less of a penalty on the producer, but it will not wisely do away with the only safety valve the nation has that lies between the surplus and the national economy, for it is safe to say that there will never be a season in which production precisely matches demand.

Education Must Face Facts

Quite a few million school children, a body of professional educators and a smidgen of adult laymen are currently concerning themselves with National Education Week. It is a sort of an annually recurring rally day generally given over to a little soul searching, but mostly conducted to remind the nation that our particular type of education is a wonderful thing of which there should be a lot more at greater pay.

It is to be hoped that this week the pattern will change—that there will be a massive amount of soul searching by the people who no longer go to school, but who perhaps are tragically in need of wholesale re-education. They, not the children, are the ones who are making the errors of judgment which are throwing the future of America into chancery.

This is a good week to reflect that sovereignty, freedom and human dignity do not necessarily require an act of force for their defeat. They can be eclipsed simply by the appearance of a devastating force. The United States came under such a force the moment Russia demonstrated a capability of bringing nuclear war to this hemisphere.

In the light of that, American education is no longer self-governing, no longer in a position to develop its philosophies according to its preferences. Rather it has become a servant to reality and must adjust if it is some day to emerge again into the free and happy state it formerly enjoyed. It is no longer a case of what America would like its educational objectives to be. Rather, it is the grim matter of that which they must be.

In all of its zeal for public education the American public must avoid the error of granting greater financial and moral support to an institution which is disposed only to enlarge and extend its capacities for the pursuit of the past. Education first requires a revision, gearing itself to the prime needs of national survival.

Education has been a philosophy first and profession second. Henceforth, it must be a science first, a profession second and a philosophy third. To effect such a change demands the utmost from the American public as devoted as it is to former concepts. But the order has already been written in the sky and it is probable that no nation will survive which disobeys it.

All Is Lost

Things just weren't bad enough in France. With its government falling apart at all seams, strikes tying up industry, inflation hitting hard and other problems, the French people might have taken consolation in the fact that at least things could get no worse. But alas, they have. For France, it could be the bitterest blow of all. Champagne producers have announced that this year's crop is so small that champagne baths are completely out of the question and even rationing of the sparkling toast material is being considered.

Hagerty May Be On His Way Out

WASHINGTON — Inside the White House, Ike's having a staff troubles, as well as Sputnik troubles. Jim Hagerty, the most skilled balancer of press retort and comment ever seen around the White House, is leaving. . . . This comes on top of the departure of Bernard Shanley, one of the best men around Ike, to run for the Senate from New Jersey. . . . New White House science staff member, James Killian, is the man who talked with Dr. A. D. Alexandrov in London about coming to the U.S.A. Alexandrov is probably the world's top mathematical physicist, has pioneered Russian moves to reach the moon. We could learn much more from him than he from us, but the State Department got his request for a visit lost in red tape. . . . It was Arthur Larson, new chief of psychological warfare, recently kicked upstairs from the U.S. Information Agency, who persuaded Ike to speed up his TV speech to Nov. 7. Larson figured the Soviets might launch sensational news on Nov. 7, their 40th anniversary, and that Ike should be ready to reassure the nation. The Russians, however, didn't.

BACKSTAGE WITH NIXON

Vice President Nixon pleaded with Eisenhower before his satellite-missile speech to make it tougher. Nixon urged him to pull out all the stops, admit there was a national emergency, and prepare the public for a long, desperate struggle with Russia for scientific supremacy. . . . Nixon even got out of bed with the flu to study the missile emergency, asked Eisenhower to call upon the nation to sacrifice a few luxuries and mobilize its resources to catch up with Russia. . . . however, assistant president Sherman Adams wanted Ike to reassure the nation there was no cause for alarm. Ike took the usual middle ground.

Inside the Kremlin, The American Embassy reports that Khrushchev deliberately launched the super-Sputnik ahead of schedule in order to divert public attention from Marshal Zhukov. The dog-carrying Sputnik had been scheduled to be fired four days later, to commemorate the Bolshevik revolution, but Khrushchev was worried that his purge of Zhukov might react badly. So Sputnik II was fired ahead of time. That's why the gala Moscow celebration on Nov. 7 lacked a big firecracker. . . . U.S. experts in Moscow predict Communist boss Khrushchev will follow his Kremlin shakeup with a thorough purge of both the Red army and the Soviet government. Many key posts are still held by supporters of the ousted Kremlin leaders. Khrushchev must get rid of them before he can consolidate his dictatorship. . . . Moscow is buzzing with rumors that Zhukov had plotted to overthrow Khrushchev with a military dictatorship, and it's suspected Khrushchev himself may be spreading the rumors in order to prepare the public for a wholesale purge. . . . U.S. intelligence has picked up a report that Marshal Zhukov's dismissal was precipitated by a heated argument with Khrushchev. Khrushchev had tried to assert his authority over the Defense Ministry, and Zhukov angrily told him that military affairs were none of his business. Zhukov is quoted as saying he wouldn't tell Khrushchev how to grow corn, therefore didn't expect Khrushchev to tell him how to run the Red army. It was this angry incident, U.S. agents report, that finally persuaded Khrushchev to oust the popular military hero.

ATOMIC HASSLE

Prime Minister Macmillan has sent President Eisenhower a detailed British analysis, warning that only a dramatic American success in the satellite-missile field can overtake Russia's psychological advance among neutral nations. No moderate, middle-of-the-road moves, he says, will do it. (Copyright, 1957, by Bell Syndicate)

DORIS FLESON

Killian Can't Do Job Single Handed

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has done the easy part of the task imposed on him by the Soviet conquest of outer space.

He has appointed a czar for the scientific defense program, Dr. James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has ordered top priority for missile and rocket development without regard to inter-service rivalries.

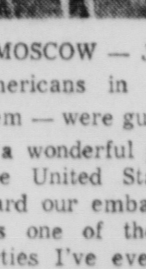

He has advanced the idea that scientific education must be increased and research activities expanded. He has promised to ask Congress to remove barriers to the exchange of technological information with friendly countries.

All this is well within his power as chief executive. It is a good and necessary start. But under the American system the orders and ideas of even the President are not self-executing. The necessary next step is to put a price on the job both in terms of money and changes in the present priorities of civilian life. Then the American people must be persuaded — and through them the Congress — that the job must be done and the price paid.

Nor can Dr. Killian be assured of a clear path with the Presidential priorities completely honored. He will need the persistent and informed support of the President from day to day.

Marines Celebrate In Far Off Moscow

MOSCOW — Just about all adult Americans in Russia — 175 of them — were guests Saturday night at a wonderful party given by the nine United States Marines who guard our embassy in Moscow. It was one of the most wonderful parties I've ever attended.

Dress was formal from evening gown to black tie to dress uniform. The Marines were celebrating the 182nd anniversary of the Corps and they did so with such distinction that it brought a surge of pride into every heart there. The anniversary ball was held at Spaso house, princely czarist-period home of American Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, his family and some of his staff. All year long, the handful of Marines chipped in hard earned dough to the party kitty so as to make the anniversary as memorable as possible. They bought turkeys, hams, the best champagne and hard booze and constructed a great birthday cake which the ambassador cut after a tape recorder played Semper Fidelis.

The colors had been brought forward smartly behind six Marines carrying sabres. It made a splendid, warming scene for the isolated, lonely little group which can have only the faintest contact with the Russian people.

Our first sight of the tombs of Lenin and Stalin was on an eerie foggy night. A crowd of about 100 had gathered in the gloom to witness the changing of the guard. Spotlights illuminated the boxlike mausoleum and glinted off the red and black marble and granite. Delegations from the ends of the Communist world had placed big flower wreaths against walls flanking the entrance. The metal door leading in was slightly opened as if for ventilation. Two handsome young soldiers stood on either side facing each other, never moving a muscle or batting an eye, their bayoneted guns at present arms.

From the main gate of the huge Kremlin, the same gate Napoleon once entered, marched three Red army troops, the leader sergeant of the guard and two guards. They walk with a modulated goose step and are spit and polish all over. They came to the area of the tomb briskly and relieved other guards with snap precision. The two fresh guards froze to the position they would hold for the next hour. The two relieved guards goose-stepped off. The clock in the biggest of the Kremlin towers tolled ten. Shawled women and men with caps blended into the anonymity of fog. Lenin and his disciple slept.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

We chose a good day to go nutting — a day when idleness was the most attractive and productive industry. There was a fresh crispness in the air with a good clear sky. The countryside was spashed with bright left-over tints of October, although November could be seen on the somber hillsides. The rustle of a single falling leaf drifted like a whisper to the pond below.

As we gathered the nuts we talked of our favorite delicacies. There would be black walnut cake and cookies for Thanksgiving. There would be divinity candy sprinkled with tasty nut bits for the Christmas holidays.

An angry squirrel tried to interrupt our conversation by scolding and leaping wildly from branch to branch. Blue Jeans thought we should leave just a few nuts for the little furred creature. I reminded him that we were later than usual in gathering nuts and I was certain the squirrel had already stocked his winter supply.

"But maybe this squirrel was a lazy squirrel," he protested. "Maybe he forgot all about winter coming so soon."

I continued to gather nuts and he noticed that his reasoning bore little weight.

As a final argument he said, "I think it would be very selfish of us to eat black walnut cake and cookies on Thanksgiving Day when this little squirrel would have none."

That did it. Any ideas that I had seemed too futile to express.

"You're right," I admitted. "We'll leave a nice big helping of black walnuts right under this tree for a very lazy little squirrel."

Our front yard has taken on that "winterized" look. The rain gauge has been emptied and turned upside down, the picnic table has been moved to shelter and the bird houses have been replaced by bird feeders. The last of the tulip bulbs have been put into the ground and the yard raked free of leaves for the final time. Now we are waiting for the snow to lay a soft white blanket from fence to fence and cradle all the sleeping things in hushed silence.

Have you ever noticed how the noises of a house change from one season to the other? I like the noises of a house when the nights grow long and the wind's voice begs at the window to be let inside. There's the familiar hum of the furnace, so comforting as it blows its warm breath across the room.

And the ticking of a clock — strange how we failed to hear its rhythmic staccato beats during the summer. But then there were open doors, and noises from the outside drifted in to muffle its tick-tock. Now the room is cozy and silent and its marking of time almost deafeningly upon the ears like a small child coaxing to be heard.

There's the rustle of paper as the pages of a favorite book are turned, and the striking of a match that renews the glow of a cigarette. The snip, snip of scissors intersperses the silence as it clips a skein of yarn. There's the light clinking of coffee cups when sandwiches and cookies satisfy the midnight appetites.

I like the gentle talk and laughter that bounds from wall to wall because there are no open doors for escape. This is fireside weather . . . chairs drawn together, time for books and friends . . . time for hearts that understand . . .

OLGA CURTIS

Madame Butterfly Learns The Mambo

TOKYO — The traditional Japanese geisha girl is making a big comeback — but for cash, not culture.

The pretty youngsters who nowadays enter into the long years of geisha training don't give a hoot for tradition. They want to be geishas because the geisha probably is the highest-paid hostess on earth.

She nets about $300 monthly, while the poor office worker spends her entire income on rent, food and clothes.

What does the geisha do for her wages? Geisha officials explain seriously that there are at least four classes of geisha.

The highest is the traditional geisha, uniformed in mitten-toed white socks, extravagant silk kimono, white-powdered skin and dark eye make-up, and wearing her long black hair in an ornate, foot-high doughnut-shaped coil.

The true geisha is the one that starts learning her profession as a child and who qualifies in all the hostess arts — from serving tea to playing games.

The first things a geisha girl learns is how to open a door. This sounds simple, but it isn't — and yet it's typical of the whole geisha structure.

Japanese doors open like sliding panels, and you or I would just grab hold and pull.

The geisha doesn't. First she drops softly to her knees. Then she bows almost to the floor, with her hands outstretched in front of her like limp flower petals. Then she raises her head, and uplifts her hands, slowly, gracefully.

With her fingertips, she pulls open the door.

Then she bows down to the floor again, hands outstretched.

Most girls begin their training at 10 or 11, as maids-of-all-work to geishas. Before their 16th birthday, when they may serve officially as apprentices, the prospective geisha must learn "manners." This means learning how to bow, how to stand, how to sit, how to walk, how to open doors, how to serve tea, sake or food, and finally—how to talk to customers.

A girl's good looks and her wit in pleasing customers count equally in deciding her success. The geisha is specifically trained to avoid unpleasant subjects with a coy flip of her fan, to steer customers away from any possible argument.

To be of first rank, she must also learn to play first the drum and the banjo-like three-stringed samisen. In addition she should be proficient in thirty different kinds of basic dancing, keyed to six different types of Japanese melody. When she has learned all this, then she continues studying — new dances new songs, even the mambo and the cha-cha-cha if the customers like it.

She'll laugh at bad jokes, sing when a man wants to hear music, dance when he wants to watch dancing, feed him like a pampered baby and do it all with deep bows to his greatness and adoring glances at his manly face.

At "Kiyokawa," the cheery-tree-enclosed restaurant, it costs 2,000 yen ($5.65) a person just to have a geisha feed you tea and cakes. The average tab per person for a three-hour dinner, with geishas to serve, sing and entertain, is 7,000 yen ($19.44). Dinners are held in "Kiyokawa" by appointment only. The proprietor, or "mama-san," not the customer, selects the geisha.

"I hire 40-year-old geisha as musicians," smiles Mrs. Haru Hata, "mama-san" at Kiyokawa "because the musicians sit across the room. The dancers are usually 22 or 23, and the servers — who are closest to the customers — are usually 18."

This subtle grading of geisha is sometimes wasted on western customers because of the girl's heavy white powder make-up and high, fish-oiled wigs. But the traditional geisha are a good tourist attraction.

Our Education

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The Star has recently carried a number of items on education. The numerous indications that Russian scientific advance has completely surpassed our own is disturbing to all who follow current publications. Professor Saylor's study showing that fewer and fewer of our high school students take science, mathematics, and foreign languages indicates that our whole educational system will require a quick adjustment if we expect to make any effort to train young people for survival.

The Russians initiated their scientific program by putting their scientists to teaching. They soon spread knowledge so that they have a technically competent population. We do not have people in our secondary schools who can teach the sciences, mathematics or foreign languages, and with our present educational set-up, we have no possibility of producing such teachers.

This last point is most vital for the American public to grasp.

J. L. SELLERS

Grim Choice

Alexandria, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Thursday night our President told us that we should improve our posture for defense. Defense never won a game or a war or ever achieved anything better than a draw.

Friday night Alexander de Seversky told us that unless we made a radical change in three years, one-third of us would be dead. He has been right in his predictions more often than he has been wrong.

If the Communists win, each of us will have a three-way choice—to become a Communist tool, a Communist slave, or a corpse.

Christmas Is Coming

TIN CAN ANGEL

Take the end of a number 2½ can (about quart size) and with wire cutters snip from the edge to within about one-half inch of the center to form two, pie-shaped segments for the wings. Curl the edges of the larger segment left over between the wings toward the back to form a small cone (the body of the angel). The smaller segment between the wings at the top can be curled forward over a pencil to form the head and a wire "halo" threaded through the coil.

Snip a narrow strip from the bottom of each wing and curl them forward for the arms. Paste, glitter and sequins add the final touch.

A word of advice: anything you make will acquire that "professional" look if you use patience and let your imagination have free rein. Don't be afraid to try something different, and if the first article turns out a mess—try it again.

It is possible to make your own attractive Christmas decorations—fashioned from scraps of material to be found in any home or easily purchased at the nearest "five and ten," plus bits of wire and a dab of paint or paste—and to prove it, The Star offers the second in a series of "how-to-do-it" stories.

With fingers slightly nicked and shears of glue on our favorite jacket, we would like to pass along instructions on how to make the striking centerpiece (pictured) which we received from Mrs. Elizabeth McLean who conducts the Adult Home and Family Life decorating classes for the Lincoln Schools.

Both are made from common, every day tin funnels of graduated size. But first, you must get your favorite handyman to cut a round wooden block for a base. Ask him to drill a hole in the center to hold upright a round wooden dowel (just like a broomstick handle) which you can obtain from any lumberyard. While you're at it, borrow the nice man's wire cutters.

Cut the tips off the funnels—widening them if necessary so the funnels will slip onto the dowel and fit tight where you want them to. The pattern on the Christmas tree at right was made by tracing a design on the funnels with glue and sprinkling with glitter and sequins. Tiny beads—could be five-and-ten "pearls"—edge each funnel tier, and the little angel on top (cut from a tin can) completes a very modern and beautiful tree.

To get the effect at left, turn the funnels upright on the dowel, spray paint the whole thing (this one is a black, matte finish) and paste on gold braid. The funnels are filled with "angel hair" and bright Christmas tree balls in blue and gold, and gilded cones are clustered at the base.

THE CALENDAR, socially speaking, is a little on the lean side—but only temporarily. The weekend will have more than its usual quota of football activity since we hear that numerous Colorado fans are following their team to Lincoln and that a variety of parties have been arranged for various and sundry groups.

THE other morning we mentioned that the Fifty Fifty Club would dine and dance at Hillcrest Country Club on Nov. 19—and right now we have the names of the committee members who are planning the affair—Serving as chairmen of the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Walton Ferris who will be assisted by Mr.

CHATTER In The CORRIDOR

By CHERYL CROSIER AND BARBARA WISBEY

All three grades at Millard Lefler Junior High have had a wonderful school year thus far. There have been a variety of school activities, plus a little social whirl that has been interesting.

October was a busy month—Ed Givens, seventh-grader at Millard Lefler, had a masquerade party on Friday evening, Oct. 25. Speaking of the seventh grade—the parents of the class members visited Millard Lefler on Oct. 8. The average attendance for each class room was 114—not bad. Then, the seventh grade pupils have plans for Nov. 22—a school party.

The eighth graders have had quite a ball during the past few weeks. Dianne Quinn had a birthday party on Oct. 18, and 14 girls showed up. The following afternoon Janet Zastrow was surprised when a group of girls were at her house to celebrate her birthday.

The flu bug was active during the planning of two other parties. Barb Wisbey, for instance, had to cancel her masquerade dance planned for Oct. 25, and the eighth grade school party was changed from Nov. 1, to Nov. 15.

But all was not lost to the flu—Kay Wisbey had a coke party on Oct. 29, and the evening was spent dancing to records. And on Nov. 8 the Y-Teens had a boy and girl hayride when the girls invited the boys and prepared a sack lunch.

The ninth-graders had a dancing party at the home of Cathy Stumps on Oct. 24—the first day of the Teachers Convention—and earlier in October—the 11th, the ninth grade had a school party with a jitterbug contest one of the entertainment features.

The sports world at Millard Lefler has been pretty busy. There have been two field days for the boys, including tennis field day—and football field day. The girls had to settle for just one field day and that was when the ninth grade girls played speed-away.

The eighth grade girls are forming a basketball team for the city recreation events which will be held at Southeast High. The first game will be on Wednesday evening.

How dangerous is ASIAN FLU?

Before this winter is over, 25 to 34 million men, women, and children will come down with Asian Flu. That's the prediction of qualified government and private medical authorities.

Roughly, this means that 1 out of 6 persons in this area will be affected. Most of these persons will be laid up 8 to 10 days before the virus-caused illness runs its course.

Can you afford to give

Lincoln Girl Honored

Miss Marilyn Ebel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. James Ebel, and a senior at the University of Illinois was honored at the University of Illinois' annual Panhellenic Ball on Saturday evening, Nov. 9, when she was chosen as the "Ideal Girl" of her sorority, Chi Omega.

Miss Ebel and 27 other Illinois coeds were chosen by secret vote of their sororities, and the selection was based on leadership, scholarship, activity participation and appearance.

Miss Ebel, who is majoring in journalism, is the president of her sorority. She is a member of Mortar Board, Alpha Lambda Delta and Torch, the latter an activity honorary. She has been a member of the staff of the Daily Illini, a student published newspaper, for the past four years.

Sorority Honors New Pledges

The Lincoln chapters of Epsilon Sigma Alpha young business women's sorority held their annual jeweled pin and pledge banquet Monday evening in the Georgian Room of the Hotel Cornhusker.

Twelve new pledges were honored by the sorority, and receiving their jeweled pins at a ceremony following the dinner were Miss Betsy Blanchard, Miss Lee Foster, Miss Marlene Weber and Miss Rose Rerucha.

Guest speaker at the banquet was Mrs. Marie Hulbert, and the following pledges were introduced: Miss Marilyn McClure, Miss Donna Ditter, Miss Bev Livingston, Miss Judy Gynan, Miss Kathy Owen, Miss Jaynee Fritz, Mrs. Lillian Rasmussen, Miss Shirley Mae Powell, Miss Mildred Sand, Miss Bonnie Utter, Miss Marian Trumbly and Miss Yvonne Lewandowski.

Thank You, Lincoln.

The response of more than 3,000 Lincoln residents to the Lincoln Community Association's first season of musical attractions has been most gratifying. To the hundreds of workers, committee members and others who assisted in the membership campaign this year, our heartfelt thanks.

It is the sincere hope of your association to merit your continued support in bringing to Lincoln the world's finest musical ensembles throughout the coming years.

We know you will enjoy the American Ballet Theatre presentation at the Pershing Municipal Auditorium, Wednesday November 13th, at 8:15 P.M., as well as the three other concerts to follow.

President's Checkup Findings Are Good

NOTHING WRONG FOUND

... By Doctors

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's physicians said Monday after hospital checkup that "the President continues to maintain an excellent state of health."

A new medical report on the 67-year-old President, which went into particular detail as to his heart and abdomen, reported nothing wrong.

"His general physical condition is excellent," the doctors said after a physical examination with laboratory tests at Walter Reed Army Hospital Sunday and Monday.

Eisenhower had given his own report a few hours earlier on leaving the hospital, where he had spent the night. A reporter asked him then how he was feeling, and Eisenhower replied:

"Fine, fine."

Snyder and Heaton Sign
The medical report was signed by Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, personal physician to the President, and Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the hospital's commanding general.

The White House said earlier that this was a routine examination. Eisenhower had three checkups last year; he had his last previous full examination Oct. 27-28 last year. Since then he has had brief inspections of the heart and lungs.

Monday's report was largely devoted to Eisenhower's cardiovascular system, because of his heart attack in September 1955, and the abdomen, because of surgery for ileitis in June 1956.

No Insufficiency
As to the former, the report said:

"Since the last annual checkup one year ago there have been no symptoms of coronary insufficiency (angina pectoris), or of myocardial insufficiency (heart muscle weakness)."

"On examination this date the blood pressure is 130-90. The pulse rate is 75 per minute and regular. The heart remains normal in size on physical examination and in X-ray studies (fluoroscopy and X-ray film)."

"The heart sounds are of good quality and there are no murmurs or arrhythmias irregularity of the heart rhythm."

The report also mentioned that the lungs were found to be clear and the liver normal in size.

In the report on the abdomen, the doctors said it "reveals normal contour and tone" and said "there are no palpable masses or areas of tenderness."

LONDON (AP) — Children started 15,420 of the 71,280 fires in Britain in 1955, says an official report.

Officials Probing Disappearance Of 16-Year-Old Boy

PONTOTOC, Miss. (INS) — The mysterious disappearance of a 16-year-old Negro boy was being investigated in Pontotoc Monday by federal, state and county officials.

The FBI reportedly had moved into the probe of the 11-day disappearance of Jesse Harvey Bradford, but J. M. Lopez, FBI agent at Memphis, Tenn., declined to confirm or deny the report.

Federal agents in Washington, however, reported the FBI had been in touch with Pontotoc Sheriff M. C. Hembree to determine if federal law violation was involved. No further comment was issued.

Bradford, who lived on a tenant farm near Pontotoc, disappeared Oct. 31, when he was sent to a service station to purchase soda pop.

A Negro witness, not publicly identified, was reported to have informed authorities he had last seen the boy being driven off in a car with two white men, but his story, police later said, was discovered to be a hoax.

Highway Patrolman, B. B. Crockett, in charge of the state probe, said three white men were apprehended for questioning in Jackson, Miss. And one had been given a lie detector test.

Crockett said the test failed to offer any conclusion.

LT&T And Union Pact Announced

Increases Average 6.08 Cents An Hour

Agreement on a new wage schedule between the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America was announced Monday.

The agreement provides a one-year contract for nearly 1,200 members of local 7470 and became effective Nov. 8.

Merle M. Hale, company vice president, and Elvin Wait, president of Local 7470, said the agreement provides increases ranging from $1.50 to $4.50 per week and averaging 6.08 cents an hour.

Hale said the wage increases would cost the company approximately $233,000 per year. A repricing of the company's services will be inevitable, he said, if operating costs continue to go up.

He declined to say, however, whether the company had any plans to request telephone rate increases in the near future. The request would have to be submitted to the State Railway Commission.

Representing the company on the bargaining committee were K. L. Lawson, chairman; L. W. Cleveland and B. J. Sievers. The union was represented by James E. Smith of Omaha, CWA representative, chairman; Elvin Wait, Mary Jane Arthur, Dale Weaver and William Behrens.

Amnesty

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Francois Duvalier, in his first broadcast since taking office Oct. 22, announced an amnesty for persons accused of subversive activities in Haiti's 10 months of political turmoil.

He especially excluded from the amnesty, however, persons arrested for complexity in the one-day civil war of May 25.

Man, Wife Dead

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit man and his wife died within an hour and a quarter of each other of fatal heart attacks.

Charles Paeschke, 63, suffered the first fatal attack about 11 a.m. His wife, Alice, 60, was stricken at the home of a neighbor where she was taken after her husband's death.

Top Reds Confer

MOSCOW (INS) — The world's two top Communists conferred in Moscow.

Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev received Red China's Mao Tse-tung at the central committee headquarters in the Russian capital. Mao came to Moscow for celebration of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution last week.

Ranks Second

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (INS) — Two American electrical engineers recently returned from Moscow said Russia ranks second only to the U.S. in the output of electrical power even though her electrical industry started just 20 years ago.

G. Fred Lincks and Earl V. Deblieux of the General Electric Co. reported on meetings of the International Electric Technical Commission held in Moscow. They spoke at the 31st annual meeting of the National Electrical Manufacturers Assn. at Atlantic City.

The engineers warned that it would be hazardous to underestimate Russia's capabilities and to relax "our efforts."

Towns Report Several Thefts Over Weekend

NORTH PLATTE, Neb. (AP) — The Central Distributing Co. was broken into and North Platte police theorized that the burglars may have been the same ones responsible for a series of break-ins east of here over the weekend.

They said there were three break-ins at Grand Island, two elevators were entered at Shelton, a pool hall was entered at Kearney and six places were broken into at Cozad.

Between $200 and $300 was reported taken in a safe-cracking at Roush Motors in Grand Island and a souvenir German machine gun was reported missing from the Union Pacific freight depot in Grand Island.

Pool Hall Entered

About $140 in cash and checks was said to have been taken from the Kearney pool hall.

Near $300 Gone

MEADOW GROVE, Neb. (AP) — Between $200 and $300 was taken from the Co-operative Credit Assn. vault by burglars Sunday night.

County Attorney Eugene C. McFadden and Sheriff Walter Buetow said about 50 individual strong boxes were broken open and contents dumped on the floor. Losses of owners have not been determined.

Also broken into were the Evans Drug Store where $2 was taken and the Lewis and Farmers Union stores. Apparently nothing was taken from the later places.

The burglaries were not discovered until mid-morning Monday as the stores were closed in observance of Veterans' Day.

3 Tots Found Hanged; Mom Is Arrested

TORONTO (AP) — Three little girls were found hanged to death in the basement of their home Monday. Their baby sister was rescued from a fourth noose.

A few hours later their mother, a young lawyer's wife, was arrested on a murder charge.

Hospital officials said the 6-month-old baby will live.

The dead sisters were Maureen O'Donohue, 4, Eileen, 3, Kathleen, 2. Surviving is baby Mary Jo.

Police questioned the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melville O'Donohue. Mrs. O'Donohue, 27, then was arrested on the murder charge.

An autopsy is to be held to determine if the victims were strangled or died of broken necks. Mrs. R. F. Turner, a neighbor, said she found the four children hanging by rope from ceiling beams in the basement of the house in suburban Leaside. Mrs. Turner, a medical doctor, cut them down and applied first aid.

The children were rushed to the East General Hospital where all but Mary Jo were pronounced dead. Police said Mrs. Turner's prompt action may have saved the life of the smallest girl.

Mrs. Turner went to the house after receiving a telephone call from O'Donohue. Fifteen minutes before the bodies were discovered, Mrs. O'Donohue had telephoned her husband.

Mrs. O'Donohue had been in poor health recently, neighbors said. She is a former nurse.

5 Bodies Found

DUBLIN (INS) — Five bodies were discovered after an explosion blasted a cottage at Edentubber near the border between southern and northern Ireland.

Irish Republican police and army bomb experts cordoned off the area pending an investigation.

Truman Is Most Happy With Killian Appointment

WELCH, W. Va. (AP)—Former President Truman said Monday he was "most happy" with the appointment of Dr. James R. Killian as U. S. missile chief and that he thinks the United States can "catch up with the Russians" in the field of science.

At a news conference after his Veterans Day address in this southern West Virginia coal center, Truman said: "I was very glad to hear of the appointment of the president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology as head of our missile program."

Envoy Swap Possible For U.S., Syria

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States and Syria were reported Monday to be on the verge of again exchanging ambassadors as a step toward normalizing their impaired relations.

A well informed diplomatic source said such action was "favorably considered" by the two nations at a secret meeting at the U.N. last Thursday. The reported agreement was not denied by either U. S. or Syrian officials here.

Neither country has had an ambassador in the capital of the other since August when Syria expelled three members of the U.S. Embassy for allegedly plotting to overthrow the Syrian government. The United States replied by sending home the Syrian ambassador, Farid Zeineddine.

Zeineddine now is here as head of Syria's delegation to the U. N. General Assembly. He said any comment on the reported agreement would have to come from Damascus.

U. S. officials confirmed that Assistant Secretary of State William M. Rountree and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge met with Syrian Foreign Minister Salah Bitar Thursday. Arab sources said they had discussed ways of repairing relations.

Bitar left Saturday by plane for Damascus. He was expected to report to the government before any announcement is made.

Stoves Ignite Two Trailers

Two trailer homes caught fire from their stoves, the Lincoln Fire Department reported Monday.

The trailer of Ray Alder, located one mile west and about three miles south of the State Penitentiary, was a total loss following a fire started by a kerosene stove explosion, firemen said.

A trailer home at 26th and Cornhusker Hwy. and occupied by Jerry Grotzky was "considerably damaged" from a fire resulting from an oil stove, firemen reported.

Polio Victim Back In Hospital; 'Good'

FREMONT, Neb. — Eighteen-year-old Larry Becker, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Albert C. Becker of Fremont, was reported in "good condition" late Monday in an Omaha hospital.

Afflicted with polio several years ago, the youth was taken to Omaha to be placed in an iron lung after his condition was complicated by flu. He was graduated from Fremont High School in 1957.

Yemen-British Talks

LONDON (INS) — Crown Prince Seif El Islam El-Badr of Yemen opened talks with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd on relations between the two countries which have been strained for years. A foreign office spokesman said the talks were held in a very cordial atmosphere. For years there has been sporadic strife on the border between Yemen and Aden, a British protectorate.

"I hope we can get this project in the groove and keep it there," Truman had suggested earlier that some such appointment be made by the Eisenhower administration in answer to Russia's recent scientific achievements.

Asked if he thought his suggestion brought about the appointment of Killian, he said, "I don't know about that, but I do know I studied the situation carefully and offered the remedy and it was carried out."

As for Russia's recent proposal for a summit conference for the purpose of outlawing war as a means of solving political problems, Truman said he felt such a meeting would be "wasted time."

Stronger He stated: "You can't negotiate with the Russians unless you are stronger than they are. The only language they understand is when you tell them how many divisions you have in your armed forces."

The former President earlier told about 1,200 persons in a downtown theater that the character assassination of top government scientists during the first Eisenhower administration was responsible, in part at least, for what he said was this nation's failure to keep up with the Russians in missile development.

Truman mentioned no names in particular, but said at least half a dozen scientists left their jobs in 1954 as a result of the McCarthy hearings.

"We had terrific attacks upon the scientists who were working on the adaptation of atomic energy for peaceful purposes," Truman said. "They were abused and, as a result, they went into schools and other places, and that is one main reason we are behind the Russians."

Truman said he felt the United States could catch up with the Russians but that it would not be easy.

Fat And Lazy "The trouble with us is that we are fat and lazy and want too many cars and too many fancy gadgets," he quipped.

The former chief executive said he does not believe it possible to replenish our supply of scientists by revamping the academic program of our schools to compare with those in Russia.

The United States Office of Education released a report in which it was indicated that such a revamping seemed in order.

"This would not be possible under our democratic way of life," Truman said. The first thing we have to do is get our young people interested in science, and they will carry on with it from there," he said.

The ex-President appeared in excellent health and apparently his busy day here had not fatigued him.

He arrived shortly after dawn, attended a stag breakfast, took part in a large parade, delivered his address and presented trophies to winners of a parade float contest.

He was to leave here by train for Washington and New York for a visit with his daughter, Margaret.

'INNOCENT' COMMUNICATION LEADS TO RED POLICE TRAP

Editor's note: This is the second of a series of articles in which confessed Soviet spy Jack Soble tells the innermost secrets of a Red espionage ring in the U.S. of which he was a leader for 15 years.

By JACK SOBLE
(Written with Jack Lott)
(World copyright, 1957, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

In the Soviet espionage network, the most innocent communication can lead to a trap laid by secret police agents.

In June, 1942, I was in Montreal, Canada, working as foreman in a bristle factory owned by my brother, Boris. My wife, Myra, and I had moved there — telling no one of our whereabouts — after arriving in the U.S. from Russia, via Japan, in November, 1941.

Despite my promise to Soviet Secret Police Chief Lavrenti Beria to become his spy in America, I had decided to cut myself off completely from the past and begin a new, clean life in the free air of the new world. I felt secure thousands of miles from Moscow.

Then came a letter from Amtorg, Soviet trade and purchasing mission in New York. It was to offer to sell bristles at extremely low, and attractive prices. It sounded like a normal business proposal. I was urged to come to New York to examine samples.

In New York the Amtorg manager, named Fomin, greeted me like a long-lost friend. His prices, however, were way out of line. The trip from Canada was a complete waste of time, I felt.

Irritated and angry, I demanded to know why he had misrepresented his prices in his letter.

No Answer
Instead of getting an answer, Fomin inquired where I was staying in New York.

"What difference does that make?" I retorted.

"Some people want to see you," he answered.

Puzzled, I asked for their names. "Your friends in Moscow who helped you come to America," he replied. "I suggest you do as you are told."

All the promises I had made to myself evaporated. I quickly acceded.

Fomin told me to go to the lobby of my hotel at 10 a.m. the next day. There, he said, I would meet a short, stocky man carrying a Saturday Evening Post in his right hand with his index finger inside the pages of the magazine.

I kept the appointment. The man of the given description evidently knew what I looked like, for he approached me and said in Russian:

'We Need You'

"I am Vassili Machailovitch. Why have you been hiding? We need your services."

On the defensive, I explained that I had been working in Canada for a livelihood for my family.

"It is necessary for you to move immediately to New York and live here," he commanded. "There is not time to lose. You have no choice, comrade."

Machailovitch, a repulsive looking man who wore glasses, impressed me that he meant business.

The agent, who later proved to be Vassili Zubilin, boss of all Soviet secret police representatives in the U.S., gave me 96 hours to return to Canada, get together my family and belongings and resettle in New York.

Called 'Sam'
Four days later I met Zubilin in the lobby of the Beacon Theatre, in New York. I was given my first assignment and the code name "Sam."

Zubilin, who was operating under the cover of third secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, informed me I was to work under him.

The immediate job was to investigate and report on the Trotskyites, and on Jewish and Zionist organizations.

He explained there were three Trotskyite groups in New York City and that a Russian agent had been planted in each group.

Zubilin said I would be in charge of collecting all information these and other agents obtained and passing it on to another Russian, who was later introduced to me as "Serge."

'Judaism An Enemy'
Outlining how I was to gather information on the Zionist movement, and the United Jewish Appeal, Zubilin said Russia regarded Judaism as an enemy to, and a menace of, Communism. Judaism, as well as Catholicism and all other religions, he told me, was "A guise for imperialism and the exploitation of the proletariat."

As a man who had been brought up by a deeply religious Lithuanian family in an atmosphere steeped with religious tradition, I should have been shocked and angered by his words.

Instead, blinded by my intense communistic beliefs which had become my only religion, I accepted them.

Zubilin kept me supplied with over $1,000 a month to cover my rent and pay the half dozen agents under my direction $100-150 monthly, plus expenses.

Three Agents
I met the three Trotsky agents, each at a different restaurant, to get their reports.

From them I received the names and addresses of the members, occurrences at meetings and activities and trends of the Trotskyite movement.

A man and woman, dedicated

Communists, were planted in the offices of the United Jewish Appeal. Through them I obtained secret correspondence between Zionist leaders and our state department, as well as reports of conversations.

I received minute details of the activities of other Zionist organizations at rendezvous in the Times Square area.

From the summer of 1942 until the end of 1944 I met Zubilin frequently.

In March, 1944, Zubilin told me I had proved my reliability to the Soviet Government and would be rewarded with the biggest, most important, job of my career.

(Tomorrow: Soble meets the fabulous Boris Morros and becomes involved in a fantastic spy front.)

LITTLE GIRLS SUFFOCATE IN DEEP FREEZE

VICKSBURG, Miss. — Two young sisters suffocated when they became locked in their family's freezer.

Janice Louise Vandevender, 7, and Anita Marie Vandevender, 6, were pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver O. Vandevender said they left their daughters under the care of a 14-year-old brother while they visited relatives.

When they returned, the boy was watching television and the girls had disappeared.

Police found the girls in the freezer which Mrs. Vandevender had left open to defrost.

Omahan Pleads Innocent To Theft

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. — Charles Bradehorst, Omaha, is free under $7,500 bond after pleading innocent to a burglary charge in Otoe County District Court.

Bradehorst is charged in connection with the Aug. 26 theft of $10,000 worth of tires from the Gangel Oil Co. warehouse here. His case is expected to be heard during the November term of District Court, opening the 18th.

Stanton Delaplane's POSTCARD

Last week was Cat Week and National Can Opener Week — a rather nice combination when you think that most cats eat out of cans there days.

The slogan of Cat Week is: "Help Save America's Cats. Adopt a Cat."

This is an interesting idea. Because I have adopted a number of cats at different times. But I am never sure the cats adopted me. At present I have a loose connection with a Siamese lady cat and her half-witted son.

I open the cans and they eat the contents. That is our connection. It is the only friendship based entirely on the can opener.

There is no one more friendly to cats though than cat owners. A lady typist in London has adopted 100 cats. And a number of British cats have been on the payroll of the General Postoffice for generations. They get a shilling a week and are supposed to run off mice.

In Liverpool, Matthew McBride was awarded a medal for "Devotion, Courage, Kindness and Action."

In the past three years—McBride is 49 now—he saved some 500 cats. From trees, wells and various places that only a cat would think of getting into.

Saving cats is McBride's hobby. When he gets off work, he prowls around Liverpool listening for meowing. Pretty soon he finds a cat up a tree. He climbs up and gets the cat down.

It has always been a mystery to me why cats can always get up a telephone pole. But getting down—for heaven's sake you have to call out the fire department.

Once I was sent out by my paper to interview a cat who was perched on a piling. He was out there at high tide. In a place I could not get to with a rowboat. How in the world he did it was beyond me.

But on the shore were the photographers and many cat lovers. All demanding that the Coast Guard rescue the daffy animal.

I shouted a couple of pertinent questions at him. And later reported that he said:

"I did it for the wife and kitties." I did not get a medal for "Devotion, Courage, Kindness and Action."

I did not even get a raise. The editor said he did not want to spoil me.

At great odds with the Cat people are "The Friends of the Birds." Bird Day is celebrated in eight States and is gaining all the time.

The Bird people would like to get rid of all cats—possibly get rid of all the Cat people, too.

Though cats adopt you in a rather standoffish way, they stick around like a visiting relative. And cat history is full of cats who make fantastic treks to get home.

Recently, a cat, name of Hornblower, arrived in Omaha. He had been traveling with Chief Warrant Officer Donald Moore from Shreveport, La. Moore stopped to visit a Civil War shrine at Gravette, Ark., When he came back to the car, Hornblower was gone.

There was some opinion among Confederate cat lovers that Hornblower had stepped out to drink a toast to Robert E. Lee. (Through it is my opinion he went out to see if the General's horse, Traveler, had ever been put up in cans.)

Anyway, some weeks and 455 miles later, Hornblower showed up at the new apartment. The Moores had not had a phone installed and were not even listed with "Information." So it is just another of those mysteries you are always running into about cats.

This story is being sold by cat lovers these days, pointing to the constancy of cats. On the other hand, it may be simple. It may be that Hornblower HAD to find Moore. He was the only man he knew who had a can opener.

U.S. MAN ON THE STREET ISN'T PANICKED OVER RUSS SPUTNIKS

Russia's second earth satellite has deepened the furrows on many an American brow, but the proverbial man on the street is not being panicked. Or, if he is deeply concerned, he's doing a pretty good job of concealing it.

An Associated Press survey of letters to the editors of American newspapers and polls since Sputnik I and II began winging around the earth reveals a variety of reactions—humor, confidence in the U.S. government and scientists, some dissatisfaction with the administration and a general feeling that now is the time to shuck complacency.

A typical attitude was contained in this letter to the Dallas News: "Russian satellites are what Americans needed. We were smug about our superiority. Now we have been beaten and will have to start working for a modern national defense."

NEW ENGLAND

Manchester, N.H.: The Union Leader reported "the people are very frightened" and feel the administration "should get going and do something about Russia's advantage in the satellite race."

Providence, R.I.: Journal man-on-the-street poll showed the average Providence citizen is well informed about the earth satellite but not worried about it. There is a general confidence that the U.S. will soon have a bigger and better satellite than the Soviets.

NEW YORK

New York: The Times said about 20 per cent of the letters it received on Sputnik called for more scientific education, research and training in the United States and another 20 per cent criticized a lag in our scientific program. Some writers opposed competition between the United States and Russia in the missile field and an occasional letter congratulated the Russians for their achievement.

A Brooklyn reader of the Daily News wrote: "Wait till the Russians build a gold course on the moon. Then Ike will get interested."

A Manhattan woman wrote: "Instead of sending that helpless little dog out into space, the Russians could easily have asked the United States' permission to send Gov. (Orval) Faubus (of Arkansas)."

SOUTH

Atlanta: The Journal reported no appreciable volume of letters on Sputnik and added, "it seems that people write us about Little Rock and everything else, but haven't written much about Sputnik."

MIDWEST

Cincinnati: An Enquirer man-in-the-street Sputnik poll revealed there was general agreement on these points: Russians are propaganda-minded "showoffs" and "Uncle Sam" has a whole bagful of "Buck Rogers type tricks" he hasn't bothered to unveil yet.

Columbus, Ohio: The Dispatch said its volume of letters on Sputnik was "moderate" and that almost all writers urged a speed-up program. One letter read: "The full implication of Russian success has not been impressed enough upon the average person. The average person on the street couldn't care less about our scientific lag."

Kansas City: The Star said the satellites had brought one of the biggest letter responses of the year, measuring up with the Little Rock situation. About half the letters were critical of the United States for allowing Russia to launch a satellite first. Among other letters some referred to the satellites in a humorous way or protested the use of a dog as a passenger.

ILLINOIS

Chicago: The Tribune noted a large increase in mail on the Sputniks but said it received more on Little Rock. The letters included some attempts at humor, expressions of serious alarm, demands for a "crash" program and comment on President Eisenhower—some writers thought he was caught flat-footed and other said he is doing as well as anybody could.

Decatur, Ill.: The Herald and Review said most of its mail was concerned with local issues. Of two Sputnik letters, one commented: "At last scientists and mathematicians are beginning to receive the attention and honor they so richly deserve. Brains had taken a backseat to brawn and muscle."

WISCONSIN

Milwaukee: A sidewalk poll taken by the Sentinel brought the following comments:

Mrs. Andrew Murawski, a model: "Don't know why anyone actually wants to get to the moon first."

Don Snyder, tavern keeper: "We don't have to worry about Russia being first. Once the U.S. really knuckles down to the problem I'm certain we'll be able to surpass the Reds."

William Jones, radio station time salesman: "The whole thing frightens me..."

SOUTHWEST

LUBBOCK, Tex.: The Daily Journal reported a survey showed little interest in Russian activities.

Oklahoma City: The Daily Oklahoman and the Times both reported a light response to the satellites. One reader told the Times: "I'd like to get up on rooftops right now and after dropping a few

Beginners' Casserole • Dust Mitten • Cake for Breakfast

Alone on Thanksgiving

Don't plan to sit alone, if you're away from the family board this Thanksgiving. Hunt up others who will be alone too, even if they're folks you don't know too well. (The girl at the drugstore who looks lonely; the fellow at the desk next to yours, the new widow or widower in your block.) Then make your guests feel like "family"; ask each to bring a contribution! Cans of cranberry sauce, a bakery cake or pie. Let everyone come early ... to set the table, make the salad, test the turkey. The result? A holiday to be remembered always — by you and your lucky guests.

Speaking of Turkey

All year through, it's wonderful to own a modern automatic gas range. But at holiday time you'll praise your range even more. Gas baking is moist baking—exactly the kind of atmosphere a good turkey pleads for! No more tough, dried-out birds for you when you own a new gas range. And everything's so automatic, the dinner almost cooks itself. To learn all the tricks, see your local gas company or neighborhood gas appliance dealer.

Hand-y Duster

Mrs. Leo Edgerton of Omaha, Nebraska, dampens an old mitten with furniture polish, wears it for quick dusting. Then she steps to the door, claps her hands, and the dust flies away! Mitten can be washed and reprocessed with polish, says she.

Coffee Cakes for Breakfast

Here's a breakfast treat. Marie Quinlan of Omaha mixes thoroughly $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, 1 beaten egg, 3 Tbsp. shortening. Now stir in $\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk and sift together $2\frac{1}{2}$ tps. baking powder, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt and 2 cups flour. Mix well, place in well-greased 9-inch baking pan and top with apple slices, fresh or canned. Sprinkle sugar and cinnamon on top, whisk into a 375-degree gas oven for 25 to 35 aromatic minutes.

Cheese Saver

Mrs. A. B. Cassell of Minneapolis, Minn., never throws away cheese when it gets dry. She grates it, stores it in a tightly-closed jar in her refrigerator, adds it to casseroles in seconds!

Automatic Defrosting

Your new gas refrigerator will whisk away frost, even dispose of frost water...with no help from you! Automatic defrosting doesn't affect your frozen food storage a whit. You'll like the dew-action freshener that keeps your fruits and vegetables crisp in your automatic gas refrigerator, too. (The compartments are deep enough even for cabbage!) See the color-styled gas refrigerator at your local gas company or gas appliance dealer now, before the holidays.

Beginners' Casserole

Mrs. Carl A. Ramsey of Omaha recommends this for the eve your daughter cooks supper. Start 50 minutes before serving, spend 20 minutes in the kitchen, 29¢ a serving! Set gas oven to 350 degrees, grease a $1\frac{1}{2}$ qt. casserole. Hard-cook 3 eggs 15 minutes. Cook 8 oz. spaghetti in 2 qts. boiling salted water 9 minutes. In saucepan, melt $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter. Blend in $\frac{1}{4}$ cup flour, quickly add 2 cups milk. Cook, stirring constantly, till thick. Stir in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup grated cheese, 10 chopped olives, 1 Tbsp. grated onion, 1 tsp. dry mustard, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt, $\frac{1}{8}$ tsp. pepper, 4 dashes tabasco sauce. Shell and slice cooled eggs. Drain spaghetti, eggs, sauce and fish in layers in greased dish. Bake uncovered for 30 min.

Natural Gas Network

You can see natural gas at work for you, simply by turning on a burner! But behind this constant gas supply from your local gas company there lies an entire network of people and communications. Northern Natural Gas Company, the pipeline supplier who brings gas to your local company, can speak to folks in gas fields hundred of miles away—even if they're at work in cars, trucks and airplanes! By constant communication, many people have a part in bringing gas to your local gas company...who in turn brings it to you clean, safe, constantly. Yet this miracle fuel costs you less!

mildly-explosive Sputnik replicas for attention, shout to our complacent citizenry: "There's your next Pearl Harbor... A push-button Pearl Harbor, bearing in at 18,000 miles an hour."

Behind Football

Tulsa: The Daily World said its letters on the satellites ran behind those on integration, a state liquor issue and University of Oklahoma football.

Albuquerque: A Tribune poll shortly after the first Sputnik found little interest or concern in the matter.

WEST

Denver: The Post said letters to the editor have increased about 50 per cent since the Sputniks were launched. About 25 per cent, the paper said, were from dog lovers, 25 per cent were in a humorous vein and the remainder called for a speedup in scientific training and criticized the administration for letting Russia get ahead of the United States.

The Rocky Mountain (Colo.) News reported little if any increase in letters to the editor on Sputnik and that none expressed grave concern.

Boulder, Colo.: The Camera said the Sputniks had occasioned no appreciable reaction from the man in the street.

FAR WEST

Los Angeles: The Herald-Express reported letters on Sputnik were "pouring in pretty well, but we are somewhat surprised that they are not pouring in faster." The tenor of letters reportedly was brave, with no sense of panic. They showed anger that a living dog was set up on Sputnik II.

Pasadena, Calif.: The Star News said it had received few letters on the Sputniks. Lawrence Benner wrote: "Let me remind those who are raising such a hubbub over our so-called lack of scientific advancement that Russia may have her Sputnik but we still have our freedom and a lot of other good things."

Many readers who showed concern over Sputnik blamed soft, luxury-loving complacency by people and administration "blindness" for the United States falling behind in scientific achievements.

Ike, Pentagon Top Brass Confer On Costs Of Jumping U.S. Missile Program

... Probe Into Lagging Project Nears

BY JAMES LEE
WASHINGTON (INS)—President Eisenhower and the Pentagon's top officials conferred late Monday on the costs—in terms of added defense spending—of sharply accelerating the nation's missile and satellite programs.

Defense Secretary McElroy and Deputy Secretary Donald Quarles met with Mr. Eisenhower for what the White House said was a "preliminary discussion" of the super-weapons budget for next year.

Some administration officials indicated that Mr. Eisenhower may ask congress to lift the 275 billion dollar ceiling on the national debt to assure adequate funds for a drive to overcome Russia's leadership in satellite and intercontinental missile development.

Weiss Arrives
Meanwhile, New York Attorney Edwin L. Weiss arrived in Washington to assume his role as special counsel for the Senate preparedness subcommittee's probe of the lagging missile program.

The inquiry will start Nov. 25. Weiss said the committee will complete an "objective, constructive, impartial study of the facts" before Congress reconvenes in January.

White House news Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President, besides presiding at a National Security Council meeting Tuesday, will hold two other important conferences.

He will talk with Vice President Nixon, Secretary of State Dulles, Treasury Secretary Anderson and Budget Director Brundage about the foreign aid program.

Economic Talks, Too
Later, economic matters will be discussed at a meeting in which the participants will include Nixon, Dulles, Anderson and Brundage, Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin, Raymond Saulnier, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, and Gabriel Hauge, top White House economist.

There were reports that the stage was being set for a surprise announcement by Mr. Eisenhower in his nationally broadcast and televised speech at Oklahoma City Wednesday night.

Election, Typhoon Move In

... Philippines

MANILA (Tuesday) (AP)—Filipinos cast their presidential election ballots in typhoon weather Tuesday.

Floods and heavy property damage marked the path of typhoon Kit, churning westward in the rice lands north of Manila after hitting the Luzon coast with winds of 110 miles an hour.

Heavy rains and gusts up to 50 mph raked this capital city. Rain and clouds were forecast for the entire Archipelago. It was a stormy setting for the climax of a stormy political campaign.

A high tension wire felled by the wind electrified a man in Albay Province. Crops, buildings, roads and bridges were damaged by the typhoon's combination of wind and water. The storm grounded aircraft in Manila. Incoming planes were diverted to Hong Kong.

Political quarters saw in the storm a boost for the already strong chances for President Carlos Garcia and his Nacionalista party. They said the storm may cut down the voting in rural strongholds of Garcia's major opponents, Liberal Jose Yulo and Progressive Manuel P. Manahan.

Never Lost
Garcia, who has never lost an election in 31 years of public life, stepped into the presidential post last March when President Ramon Magsaysay was killed in an airplane crash.

Two minor candidates—Sen. Claro M. Recto, Nationalist-Citizen candidate, and Independent Liberal Antonio Quirino—are given no chance of winning.

Yulo, a 63-year-old sugar planter, predicted he would win by 500,000 votes. But political observers said they figured him to run second to Garcia.

Manahan, the 41-year-old former customs commissioner who broke with the Nacionalistas after Magsaysay's death, was considered likely to finish third. He called on the voters to throw out what he called the political machine now dominating the Nacionalista party.

Representatives Of 13 State Church Colleges Meet

About 60 representatives from 13 Nebraska church colleges were in Lincoln Monday for the annual meeting of the Nebraska Association of Church Colleges held at Union College.

The delegates heard a main talk given by Dr. Milo Bail, president of Omaha University. Bail's subject was the efficient use of facilities and staff.

Colleges represented at the meeting were Union College, Hastings College, York College, Omaha University, Nebraska Wesleyan University, Midland College of Fremont, Luther College of Wahoo, Dana College of Blair, Doane College of Crete, Concordia College of Seward and St. Mary's, Duchesne and Creighton University of Omaha.

LINCOLN HONORS NATION'S WAR DEAD IN OBSERVANCE

Lincoln paused briefly at 11 a.m. Monday to honor America's war dead during a Veterans Day parade and ceremonies in downtown Lincoln.

It was the fourth annual observance of Veterans Day on Nov. 11, formerly Armistice Day.

Veterans and armed forces members paraded down O Street, stopping at 11th for the traditional three-volley rifle salute and bugler's "Taps" for the veteran dead.

ers of Lincoln's various veterans organizations and military units. Parade units included the 43rd Army National Guard Band, Northeast High School Band, several color guards, units of the Nebraska National Guard and Air Force, and representatives of military and veterans organizations.

The 30 by 80-foot American flag which has been a parade feature for several years was carried by Boy Scouts.

Mounties Rescue A Young Climber From Mt. Hope

HOPE, B. C. (INS)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police reported that a 20-year-old mountain climber was rescued Monday from the 2,000-foot level of Mount Hope, where he had spent 36 terrifying hours almost blind from the loss of his eyeglasses.

Robert Veltner, of King, Ont., told rescuers he fell into a ravine and broke his glasses Saturday morning, shortly after he began his solitary climb.

An unidentified climber who heard his cries for help notified the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Two mounties were unable to reach Veltner Sunday, but summoned a six-man team of climbers from the British Columbia Mountain Rescue group of Vancouver, who accomplished the rescue Monday morning after an all-night effort.

Youth Sought In Slaying Of California Tot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 22-month-old girl was slain Monday in the Palos Verdes peninsula community of Rolling Hills. Police began a search for a youth seen running from the house where the nude body was found.

The body of Laura Helen Wetzel was found in the home of neighbors by her mother, Mrs. Charles W. Wetzel. The owners of the house were away for the day.

Mrs. Wetzel told police she missed her daughter during the afternoon and started hunting for her. She said she saw a youth carrying a hunting knife, run from the neighboring house.

The mother entered the house and came upon her daughter's body.

Sheriff's deputies said indications were the child had been smothered.

Police said several persons reported seeing the youth running down the street and described the youth as 16 or 17 years old.

Rolling Hills is an attractive residential area of upper middle class type homes between the beach cities of San Pedro and Redondo Beach.

Efforts A Bust

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Marshall College's efforts to repair the busted Italian marble bust of John Marshall have proved a bust so far.

The bust of the early American chief justice, for whom the college was named, was given a smashed nose and lower right ear by vandals last April. It will cost $600 to $800 to replace the bust and state funds can't be used.

LAST MAN'S CLUB LAYS WREATHS; LOST NO MEMBERS DURING YEAR

The six remaining members of the Lincoln Last Man's Club, a World War I veterans organization, laid memorial wreaths on the graves of the nine deceased members of the club during Veterans Day observances.

This year's service marked the 39th meeting of the group composed originally of 14 physicians and a dentist who returned to Lincoln after serving in World War I.

The annual ceremony will continue until the "last man" visits the grave of the 14 other members on Veterans Day.

Each year a dinner and a supper are held on Nov. 11 for surviving members at a member's house. This year, the men and their wives met at the home of Dr. J.E.M. Thomson.

Dr. Thomson reported this year's active membership is the same as last year's. The last member to die was Dr. H. Winnett Orr slightly more than a year ago.

Present members of the club are Dr. Thomson, Dr. A. B. Munger, Dr. George Walker, Dr. E. W. Rowe, Dr. H. E. Flansburg and Dr. George W. Covey.

Deceased members are Dr. Orr, Dr. J.J. Hompes, Dr. C.C. Hickman, Dr. Miles J. Brewer, Dr. Torrence Moyer, Dr. Roscoe Smith, Dr. Fred W. Webster, Dr. Stanley G. Zemer and Dr. John M. Mayhew.

NEBRASKA TRAILS 1956 RECORDS

Husker Foes Far In Front

By DON BRYANT
Sports Editor, The Star

What a difference a year makes, when it comes to the Nebraska football team.

And the full story—or most of it—can be found by comparing team statistics of the 1956 and 1957 Cornhusker clubs.

Last year at this stage of the campaign, the Huskers were 4-4, with Baylor and Oklahoma still to be played. Both of these games were lost and Nebraska, under Pete Elliott, wound up with a 4-6 record.

After eight games this fall, with Bill Jennings at the helm, Nebraska has a 1-7 mark with Colorado and Oklahoma remaining on the schedule.

No one will argue that the fact Elliott had a "lucky" year at NU, getting a weak South Dakota team to open with and then picking up miraculous last-second wins over Iowa State (field goal) and Missouri (desperation pass).

Jennings and the 1957 Huskers haven't received the Shamrock benefits, losing to Missouri in the last minute and failing to score the winning touchdown from the one-yard line against Kansas in addition to a murderous schedule.

There's a vast difference between the two teams statistically, too. In 1956 the Huskers trailed the opposition, after eight games, in every department except completed passes. However, the difference wasn't too great. This fall Nebraska is far behind the opponents and the 1956 club in all categories, indicating a slippage in both offensive and defensive departments.

Here are the comparative charts:

The individual rushing leaders after eight games last year were fullback Jerry Brown with 540 net yards and a 5.9 average and Larry Naviaux with 340 yards and a 5.3 average.

The same pair top the list at the moment. Naviaux has 272 yards and a 4.0 average, while Brown also has 272 yards. But Jerry has been the Husker workhorse, carrying 75 times, and has 3.6 average.

Brown is 268 yards shy of his 1956 total at this point, while Naviaux is only 68 yards behind his last year's pace.

Respect Buffs

Monday afternoon the Huskers started preparations for Colorado, with those players who didn't see much action against Iowa State scrimmaging the freshmen.

Coach Bill Jennings is expecting the worst from the Buffs.

"Colorado will be the best of the offensive team we play all year," he said. "That Bob Stransky and Eddie Dove can fly all the way at any time."

Bill said he thought Army had the best offense the Huskers have met to date, but he observed that "Colorado's is more explosive than Army's."

"The only time Colorado's offense has really been stopped this year was in the Missouri game and that was played in a mess of mud," Bill said.

Jennings said Monday he is "greatly encouraged" over the showing made by reserve tackles Mike Cowan of Lincoln and Duane Mongerson of Omaha against Iowa State.

"They were both in the game when we made our only big offensive showing (fourth quarter march which miss-fired on the IS 9) and I thought they both played well," Bill said.

It will be several days before Nebraska physical condition for Colorado will be definitely determined, Jennings said.

Doug Thomas, who played only the last 30 seconds against the Cyclones, is still hobbled. Art Klein, Roger Brede and LeRoy Zentile also picked up hurts, but there's a good chance all four will be ready for the Buffs.

Scottsbluff Cops West Big 10 Title

KEARNEY—Scottsbluff capitalized on a pair of breaks for two first quarter touchdowns and rolled to a 35-0 triumph over Kearney here Monday night, setting the Bearcats up for the Big 10 championship game with Grand Island at Scottsbluff Friday.

Kearney and Scottsbluff actually share the west division crown, each with 3-1 records in the league. But Scottsbluff will represent the loop in the playoff by virtue of Monday's win.

Kent Green scored three touchdowns to lead the Bearcat offensive, which used a Kearney fumble and a bad Kearney punt for scores in the first quarter.

Scottsbluff scored—touchdowns: Kent Green 3 (25, run); 17, run; 27, pass from Jerry Wilks; John Williamson (3, run); Fred Wurst (30, pass from Sid Micek); PAT: Larry Wheeler 5 (placements).

Lincoln Northeast, under the direction of Coach Art Bauer, has taken a giant stride toward becoming one of the state's better prep football teams.

A year ago the Rockets couldn't win a game, and were humiliated by Lincoln High 54-12. This year, with a new coach and a lot of inexperienced players, Northeast won three games and tied the Links 6-6.

One of the '57 victories was over Lincoln Southeast, a team that also whipped them in '56.

Coach Bauer said Monday that he was "very satisfied with the Northeast students . . . spirit is good.

team. After a slow start we came along very well and our blocking and tackling in the last two games was excellent.

"Spirit on the team and in the school is good, and I think tying Lincoln High will help us get off to a good start next year.

"We played our best game of the year against Lincoln High," he added. Northeast outdistanced the Links 11-2.

Mickey McConnell, director of training for the National Little League, visited with Lincoln Little League officials over the weekend to discuss a possible affiliation.

However, both McConnell and Lincoln officials agreed that the Little Leaguers weren't quite ready for the move.

Lincoln officials were impressed with the national group's rules of safety and methods of operation, however, and will probably adopt many of them in next summer's program.

McConnell, sports editor of the Kearney Hub in the thirties and former chief scout for the Brooklyn Dodgers, praised former Lincoln pitcher Bobby Shantz as the best defensive hurler in the major leagues.

McConnell conducted a study of pitchers' styles after Tribe hurler Herb Score was hit in the eye by a line drive. He discovered that most of the major league pitchers had their glove behind them at the finish of their follow through.

Shantz, Yank hurler recently named AL comeback player of the year, was one of the few that didn't.

Using Shantz as a model McConnell soon had his Little League managers and coaches teaching their pitchers to keep their glove in front of them after delivering the ball.

That type of training will be of untold benefit to youngsters playing ball, and Lincoln Little Leaguers are wise in adopting some of the national group's training.

The battle of the Concordias is turning into quite a rivalry. Seward (Neb.) Concordia and River Forest (Ill.) Concordia, are the teams involved.

The Illinois school is coached by Harold Brockberg, a 1952 graduate of Seward Concordia. The athletic director of Seward Concordia, Luther Schwich, is a 1946 graduate of River Forest Concordia.

Coach Brockberg today probably wishes he had remained in Nebraska. Seward Concordia Saturday trounced the Illinois visitors 21-6. Schwich, after the victory, remarked that "anytime we can beat my old school in anything, we can consider it a successful season."

Nebraska backs had a good day average-wise against the Iowa State Cyclones. But they didn't have enough chances.

Discounting the quarterbacks, the other five Huskers who carried the ball averaged more than five yards a try. Here's a rundown of their carries, yards gained and average:

Gene Sandage, 3-37-12.3; Larry Naviaux, 9-52-5.8; Jerry Brown, 10-54-5.4; Carroll Zaruba, 7-28-4.0; George Cifra, 1-4-4.0.

Quarterback Roy Stinnett carried the ball twice and gained two yards. Quarterback Harry Tolly lost two yards in four carries.

Counting quarterbacks and all, the Huskers carried the ball 36 times on the ground and gained 175 yards for a 4.9 average, which isn't bad.

But compare those 36 carries by the entire Nebraska backfield against 33 carries by Iowa State tailback Dwight Nichols, and 17 by Bob Harden, plus 21 carries by the other members of the Cyclone backfield, and it's easy to spot the trouble.

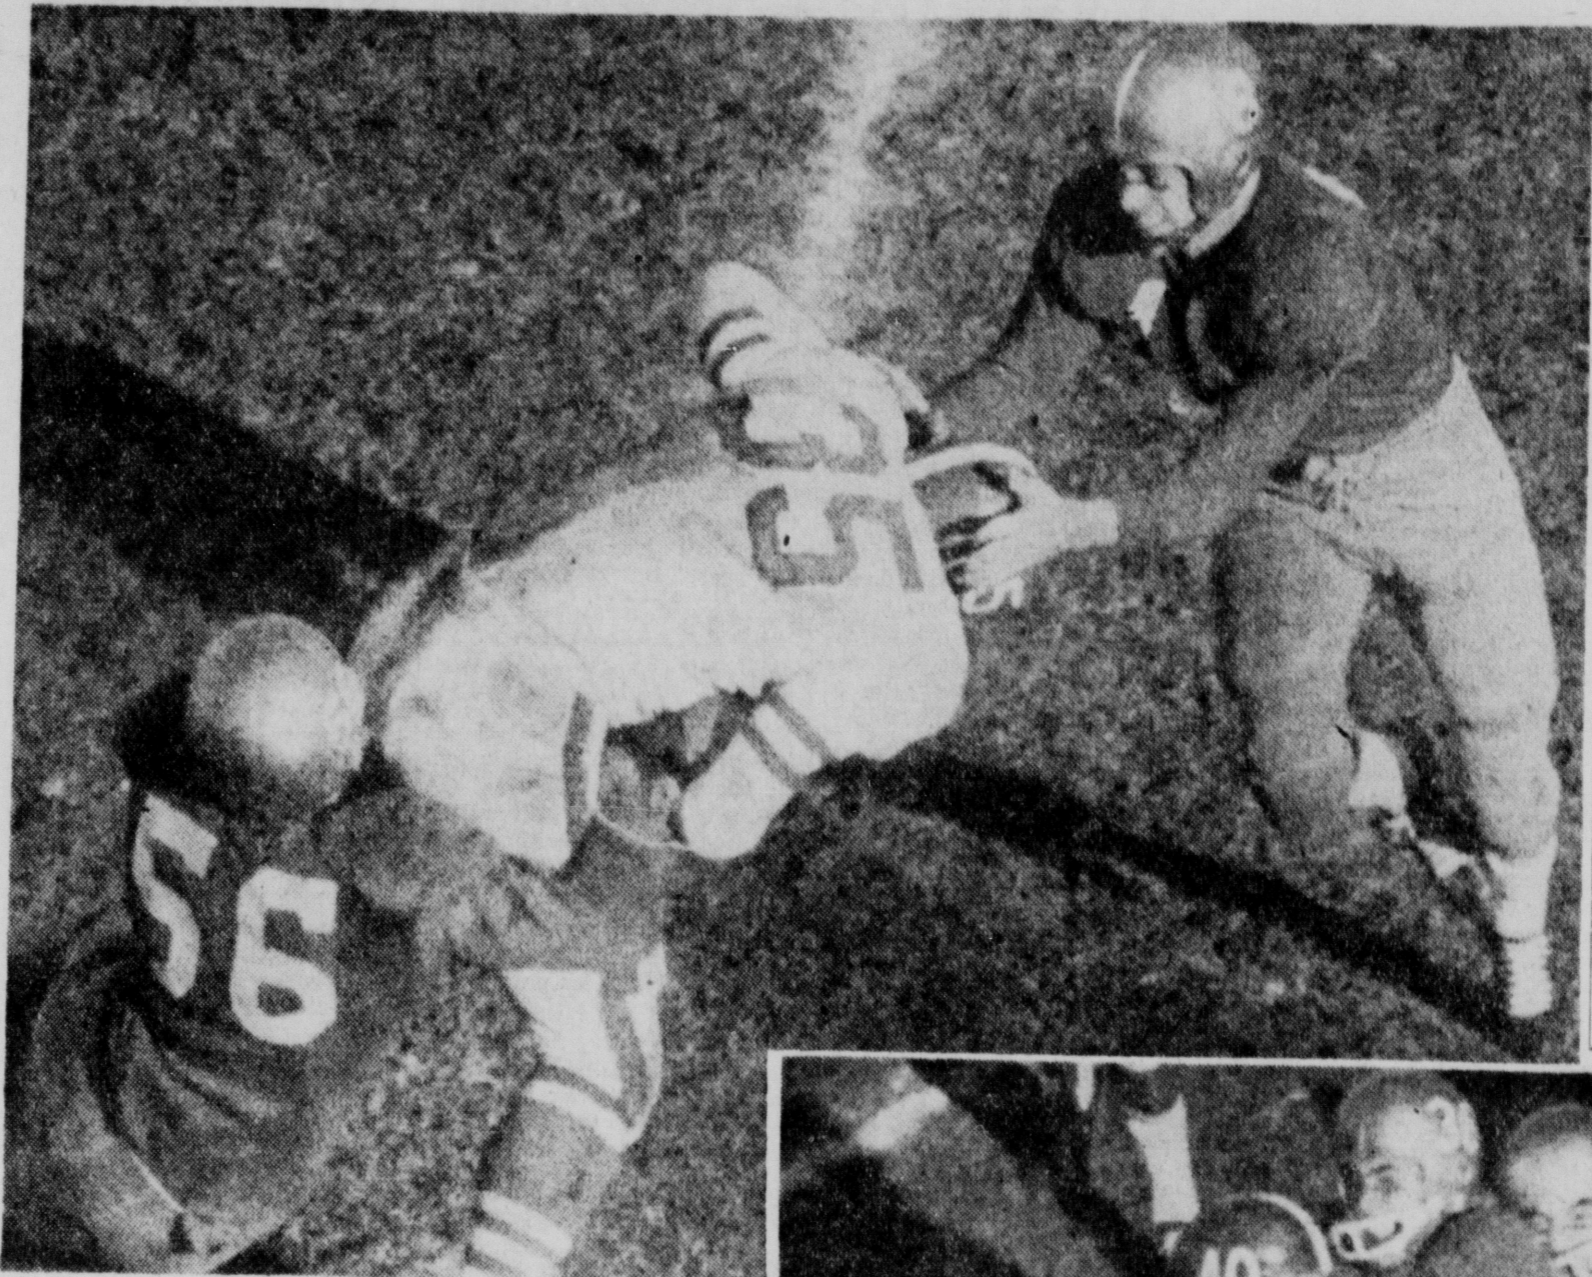

Nebraska just didn't have the ball enough.

Bowling fans will soon be able to relax in front of their television sets and watch Lincoln keglers in action.

A Lincoln bowling alley reportedly will stage Sunday afternoon pin matches with television coverage, starting late this month.

HARD ON HELMETS

NU fullback Jerry Brown (35, above) gets it from both directions as one Iowa Stater pulls his helmet and another tugs at his waist. The Cyclones were rough on Husker headgear, as the picture at right indicates. NU halfback Carroll Zaruba's vision is cut off as a pair of Cyclones do some head tackling. (Star Photos)

Lower Class Grid Crowns Are All But On The Shelf

By AL BEERE
Star Sports Staff Writer

Two more teams rated No. 1 by The Star wound up their seasons last week, thereby all but clinching the top positions in Class C, eight-man, and six-man football.

With one more week of ratings remaining, but with their seasons completed and nothing expected to alter the top rung, Seward Concordia, Exeter, and Plymouth appear set for the championships in the three divisions.

Concordia wrapped up the title last week by ripping David City St. Mary's, which had been rated No. 1 for much of the year, 32-13. Backs Dave Kroger and Mel Bremer, plus tackles John Boll and Larry Oetting, led the way.

That gives the Raiders a perfect 8-0 record for the year, and St. Mary's, suffering their first Class C loss in a 3-2-1 season, fell to fifth place.

Deshler, another early-season leader, moves up to the runner-up position, while Alma gained to third and Oshkosh, which beat last year's champion, Grant, 24-6 last week, takes over No. 4. Cambridge, Syracuse and Louisville stay 6, 7 and 8, while Atkinson moves up to No. 9 and Laurel replaces Blue Hill on the bottom rung.

If the ratings stand as they are now, there will be five repeaters from last year in Class C. They are, with last year's standing in parentheses, Deshler (8), Alma (4), Oshkosh (2), DC St. Mary's (7), and Cambridge (9).

Bob Dinneen, a hard-working senior, led Exeter to a final 33-7 win over Mead to wrap up a second straight eight-man title for Exeter. The only change in the rankings this week move Emerson in for Amherst at No. 10.

In between are Red Willow, Lawrence, O'Neill St. Mary's, Ceresco, Dakota City, Sidney St. Pat's, Elm Creek and Davenport.

Elm Creek, which was tied for sixth last year, and Dakota City, which was eighth, plus Exeter, are the only repeaters from 1956, as things stand right now.

Plymouth finished its six-man year the week before, and these rankings, too, saw few changes this week. Sprague-Martel replaces Cedar Rapids as No. 9 for the only new entry.

Behind Plymouth come Brock, Wolbach, Spalding Academy, Greeley Sacred Heart, Talmage, Diller, Clearwater, Sprague-Martel, and Bladen.

Only Diller, which finished second to Ruskin last year, is a repeater.

There are still some teams just outside the lists which may yet move in. In Class C, these include Blue Hill, Stuart and Arcadia (which now owns the state's longest winning streak at 30).

In eight-man, Amherst, Brady, Odell, and Norfolk Sacred Heart just miss the list, while Western and Prague, plus Cedar Rapids, still have chances in six-man.

Frick, Minors Talk Realignment Again

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Ford Frick again will wrestle with baseball's realignment problems today in another meeting with heads of the Pacific Coast League, American Assn. and Texas Leagues.

The San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers, who brought the problem to a head, also will be represented.

Frick's office said the meeting would be held at the Commodore Hotel, starting at 9:30 a.m., CST. When the officials met last week the site was a poorly kept secret.

Since the first meeting, both the Texas League and American Assn. have reaffirmed their desire to stand pat.

The Texas League, called hurriedly into session at Dallas by President Dick Butler, again denied Houston and Dallas permission to seek affiliation with leagues of higher classification. They had been turned down for the first time by a 6-2 vote, Oct. 14. Both had indicated they would like to be in the American Assn. or the Pacific Coast League.

Butler reported to the league the various proposals discussed at last week's meeting with Frick, George Trautman, president of the National Assn. (minors), and other officials.

Ed Doherty, president of the American Assn., also reported on last week's session at a special meeting of the directors of his league at Chicago. There had been rumors that Denver might shift to the Pacific Coast League but Doherty issued this statement after the meeting:

"The American Assn. voted today (Sunday) to operate with the same members in 1958, to play a 154-game schedule, to open April 15 and close Sept. 7."

Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, and E. J. Buzzy Bava, vice-president of the Dodgers, who attended last week's session, will be on hand for the second round.

Frick's office insisted the matter of paying indemnities to the Coast League by the Giants and Dodgers was not a subject for discussion at the meeting. However there probably will be a private huddle of the two major league club officials and coast delegates after Frick's meeting.

"We haven't met them since last week," Bava said. "We'll do some more talking tomorrow but I doubt if anything definite will come of it. Whatever we do, they (Coast officials) will have to take back to their league."

She was a resident of nearby Titus, Ala., and had suffered a fractured hip recently.

Lincoln Grid Hopes High For '58

By BOB McCOY
Star Sports Staff Writer

With another football season ended for Capital City high school teams, there is nothing left for 1957 except counting bumps and bruises. And, of course, speculation for next year.

Counting up lettermen and trying to fit those numeral winners who will be back next year will be an important winter job for every prep coach.

And from the looks of things at a glance, the local preps may be set for a fine showing next year.

Plus X, which finished 5-1-2 this season for the best Lincoln record, appears fairly well set for next year but will need backfield help.

Vince Aldrich's Thunderbolts will lose such backfield stars as Don Houser, Joe McWilliams and Don Thompson along with line stalwarts Mike Wieland, Bob Lane and Dave Higgins.

But back for next year are sophomore tackle Perry Demma, center Frank Aksamit and end Gary Tiehen, all who saw a good deal of action this campaign. Plus had over half of its 1957 squad made up of sophomores who got plenty of valuable experience.

Lincoln Northeast, too, where new coach Art Bauer rejuvenated the gridiron sport, may look for a top season next year.

The Rockets may bank on Roger Bennett, Herb Grossman and Don Copas in the line with LeRoy Bentz and Dave Bowers in the backfield. Northeast will lose very few lettermen, with the end posts and quarterback spots suffering the heaviest losses. But Rocket coaches reported a great deal of enthusiasm among sophomore and reserve players which may pay off in a winning spirit in the next couple of years.

Lincoln High, which bounced back from a slow start to become one of the top teams in the state this season despite a mediocre record, looks for greener pastures also.

Coach Ed Schwartzkopf's forces, handicapped in early games this year by rookie units in the line and backfield, will be hurt only by graduating losses at the ends and tackles, especially on the defensive side of the ledger.

Sophomore sparklers Art McWilliams, Andy Smith and Chet Paul will be back next year along with junior Larry Grenemeier to form the basis for the 1958 Links. The Lincoln High reserves finished a commendable 4-2 this season.

Cotton Bowl Bid At Stake For Aggies

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Aggies, ranked No. 1 in the nation, can grab off the Cotton Bowl invitation for a Jan. 1 date by beating Rice Saturday.

Upward of 70,000 persons are expected to crowd into Rice Stadium for the key game.

Unbeaten A&M, riding a winning streak of 14 straight, is favored to whip the unranked squad of Jess Neely by 6½ points.

Should the Aggies win, Rice would leave the field with a record of two conference losses. The Aggies, who have one conference game left with beaten and tied Texas on Thanksgiving Day, for Hill and his quarterbacking by sidelick, Frank Ryan.

An invitation to the Cotton Bowl spectacular is automatic for the Southwest Conference titleholder—although champion A&M missed out last year because the Aggies were under penalty for recruiting practices. Texas Christian represented the conference instead.

The Aggies will be faced with the finest offensive team in the Southwest Conference. The Owls, led by King Hill, have racked up around 400 yards a game on the ground and in the air. Hill, their offensive ace, has gained 968 yards in seven games.

The Rice defense, not outstanding during the season, did its best job of the year against Arkansas last week by holding the most dangerous running attack in the conference to 183 yards.

Three All-America candidates will see action.

Left halfback John Crow, the offensive and defensive hero of Aggie victories over Baylor, Arkansas and Southern Methodist has—as coach Bear Bryant puts it—been running over people since recovering from an early season injury. He is a major reason for the Aggies eight wins this year.

In front of Crow is the best defensive line in the Southwest Conference in years, led by Charley Krueger, the senior tackle from Caldwell, Tex.

Buddy Dial of Rice ranks as one of the nation's finest receivers. The junior end is the target

Hearings On Nebraska Labor Expected Next Month

Kennedy Sees Dec. 10 Date Likely Starter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rackets Investigating Committee may begin hearings on Nebraska labor-management problems next month.

Robert F. Kennedy, chief committee counsel, said Monday it is on the committee's schedule to try to get to the matters by Dec. 10.

"It depends on the rest of our schedule," Kennedy said, "but I hope we will get to them this year."

Kennedy said the committee definitely couldn't begin hearings this month.

4 Subpoenas

He said the Nebraska hearings primarily would involve the Teamsters Union and a number of different firms in the state.

At least four subpoenas have been ordered issued in Nebraska for the approaching hearings, Kennedy said.

These reportedly are for W. F. Clark of Norfolk, Clark Brothers Transportation; Dean Joy of Auburn, Darling Transfer, Inc.; G. Howard Johnson of Omaha, former president of the Nebraska Motor Carriers Assn., and Albert E. May, Omaha attorney who has represented management in labor disputes.

Support Corn Now Moving Into Storage

WASHINGTON (AP)—Corn from this year's big crop is starting to move into storage under the government's price support program.

Farm officials are predicting that upwards to half a billion bushels, or about 15 per cent of the crop will be withdrawn from markets and use under government loans and purchases agreements.

The figure that that portion of the crop will not be needed for livestock feed, export and other commercial uses. The bulk of this extra corn is in the Midwest. Farmers who complied with planting allotments are eligible for loans at rates averaging $1.40 a bushel while those who did not comply may get loans at rates averaging $1.10.

The government already holds a record quantity of about $1,260,000,000 bushels of surplus corn at an investment of about $2,150,000,000. This is equivalent to about 40 per cent of an average size annual crop.

With all that's new for a world of difference

There's bold, new styling—new Interceptor V-8 Power—new Cruise-O-Matic Drive—new power-controlled Ford-Aire Suspension! The 58 Ford is the only car ever to meet a world-wide test and win world-wide approval before its public premiere!

You could search the world over and never find a car to match this 58 Ford's new beauty... new power... new ride... all at the low Ford price. How do we know? We tried it!

In Paris... the most style-conscious fashion critics in the world had a deep, low bow for Ford's latest style creation. In the mighty Himalayas, Ford's new Interceptor V-8 engine with Precision Fuel Induction won the day! Its all-new system of carburetion, fuel feeding and combustion gives you top performance! And, there are no geographical limits to the savings and spirited versatility of Ford's new Cruise-O-Matic Drive. The gas-saving axle ratio used with Cruise-O-Matic means "built-in" overdrive economy!

Then there's nothing newer than the true air ride of Ford-Aire Suspension. It's like riding on a cloud because you literally ride on air! But, you don't have to go to foreign soil to drive the 58 Ford. We'll gladly save you the trip!

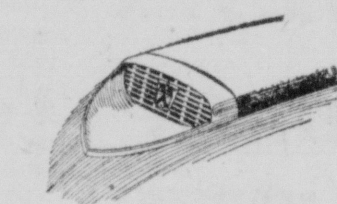

From London to Bangkok... the whole world loved it!

The 58 Ford stopped traffic in Trafalgar Square when it passed through on its history-making, round-the-world trip. And that was typical of the excitement this Ford caused in Paris... Rome... Athens... Istanbul... Calcutta... Bangkok and in all cities in between. For this Ford was proved and approved around the world in the toughest "shakedown" cruise in history. Down the rugged Yugoslavian coast line! Through the dust of Iran's Great Salt Desert! Afghanistan's Khyber Pass... over the mountains and through the jungles of India! The 58 Ford was proved and approved like no other car before.

"THERE'S NOTHING NEWER IN THE WORLD OF STYLE!"

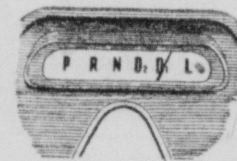

"THE WHOLE WORLD SEEMS SMALLER WITH FORD'S NEW INTERCEPTOR V-8 ENGINE!"

You'll ride in a new world of fashion with Ford's deep sculptured styling. From new Power-Flow hood to Safety-Twin taillights, Ford's world-ahead styling is a standout! There's a new Slipstream roof... a new Sculptured rear deck, too!

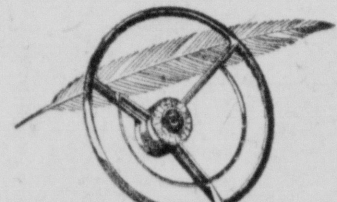

You'll be ahead with Ford's new Interceptor V-8 and Precision Fuel Induction. Gives you up to 300 hp. Smoother power... more power... from less gas! The secret is Precision Fuel Induction, a new carburetion and combustion system.

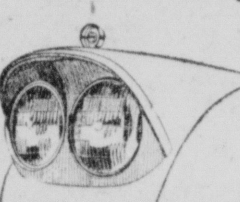

You'll get up to 15% more gas savings with new Cruise-O-Matic Drive teamed with the new Interceptor V-8. New D1 position is for all normal driving—from brisk, solid-feeling take-offs smoothly on up to highway cruising speeds.

You'll ride on a cloud instead of a spring with Ford-Aire Suspension. This is the way you've always dreamed of driving—floating on air! Four air pillows literally soak up any sign of a bump. Car relevels every time someone gets in.

You'll steer with a feather touch with Ford's new Magic-Circle Steering. Nothing rolls like a ball, and that's the secret of Ford's handling ease. Free-moving steel balls are virtually friction-free—give you the closest thing yet to power steering!

Your night driving is safer with Ford's Safety-Twin Headlights. You get safety you simply can't get with single lights... special light for high beam... special light for low. It's the biggest advance since the sealed-beam! It's high style, too.

Smooth as they come... smart as they go. The Fairlane 500 takes the 58 styling cake, going away (arriving, too)!

COME IN... SEE THE CAR THAT WAS PROVED AND APPROVED AROUND THE WORLD!

Canoeists End 5,000-Mile Denver To Maine Voyage

... 'Never Again,' Travelers Declare

OLD TOWN, Maine (AP)—Four modern voyagers who paddled and portaged two 16-foot canoes from Denver, Colo., ended their 5,000 mile trek in this canoe-making city Monday.

Greeted by thousands, the adventurers stepped ashore on Indian Island in the Penobscot River at 2:24 p.m.

A flotilla of canoes, manned by Penobscot Indians in full regalia, accompanied the quartet on the final two miles of the six months journey.

The bearded canoeists are Gerald Hewey, 27, a ski lodge operator at Aspen, Colo., whose home is in the Portland, Maine, suburb of Cape Elizabeth; writer Earl Rickers, 29, of Chester, Calif.; and Aspen ski instructors, Ed Vestal, 29, and Bengt Soderstrom, 32.

The four were virtually mobbed by enthusiastic relatives and friends.

The voyageurs had little to say, except that this was "the happiest day of our lives."

But all agreed on one thing: They'd never try it again.

(The foursome crossed Nebraska via the Platte and Missouri Rivers.)

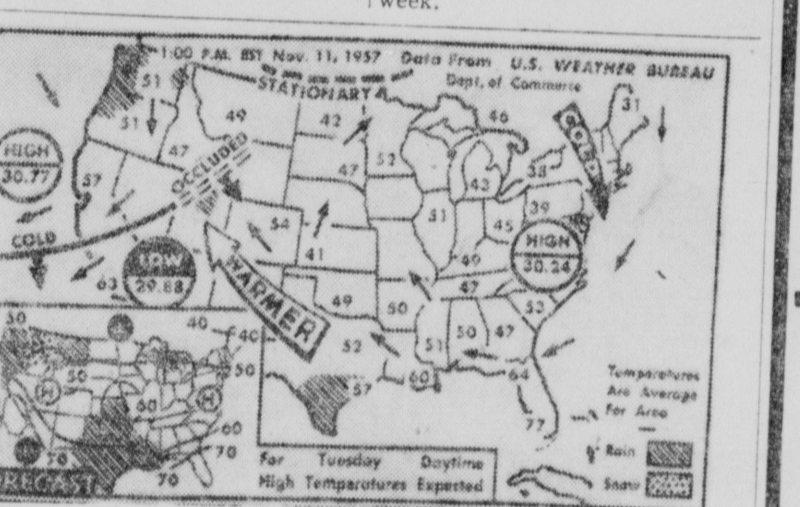

Their two battered canoes carried them through rock-strewn rapids of countless rivers; storms on the Great Lakes and through streams so dried out that they had a hard time navigating.

The quartet was honored at a Chamber of Commerce dinner and an official civic welcome Monday night. A visit to Gov. Edmund S. Muskie in Augusta and another welcome at Portland are slated Tuesday and radio-TV appearances in New York later this week.

Firemen brought the blaze under control within an hour.

There was no immediate estimate of the damage.

The lumber firm, which has its headquarters here, operates 34 retail yards in Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois.

Southern Plains To Receive Rain

A few showers are forecast for Tuesday in southern Florida. Showers are due in the upper Lakes region while occasional rain will fall in the southern Plains. Showery conditions are due along the north Pacific coast from Washington to northern California. Snow flurries are expected in the northern Rockies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Over 350 Attend 'Best' Vets Day

PLYMOUTH, Neb. (AP)—Some 350 persons turned out Monday for what was described as "the best Veterans Day observance in the state of Nebraska."

Schools were dismissed so children could take part in a parade down main street.

There was a fly-over of jets from the Lincoln Air Force Base and a free movie.

R. C. Patterson, American Legion state adjutant who addressed the observance, was the one who called it the best in the state.

Joe Emery, 46, Grand Island, Dies

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP)—Joe Emery, 46, well-known proprietor of a Grand Island music store, died Monday in a hospital. Emery suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Saturday.

Rites Wednesday For Mrs. Krug

Lincoln Star Special

HASTINGS, Neb.—Funeral services for Mrs. George B. Krug, 63-year-old Harvard resident who lost her life in an auto accident near Hastings, will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at First St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Hastings.

Mrs. Krug died of injuries suffered in a two-car collision at an intersection a mile east of Hastings. Her husband, driver of the car, is hospitalized in Hastings and reported as "doing fairly well." The Krugs, who recently retired and moved to Harvard from Hastings, had been to Hastings to visit Mr. Krug's mother who is hospitalized.

Surviving Mrs. Krug in addition to her husband are two sisters, Mrs. Julia Brown of Grand Island and Mrs. Inez Morris of Rockaway Beach, Mo.

Willis Kettleburt, 21, Byron, driver of the other car, and his passengers escaped injury.

Fine Agreed Upon

WAHOO, Neb.—Members of the Wahoo Lions Club have agreed to a rule which would require any member not displaying the American flag on flag holidays to pay a fine of $1. The club listed 14 flag holidays.

Gen. Norstad: West Holds Power Balance Despite Sputniks

CINCINNATI (P)—Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme allied commander in Europe, warned Monday night against discounting "our own assets merely because Soviet science has scored in one area."

Norstad said the Western world holds the military balance of power despite Russia's Sputniks, which he described as "two mindless tumbling pieces of metal" launched into space.

However, Norstad said he would be foolish to "brush off the Soviet accomplishment." He said "a cold war demands cold nerves" and the Soviet satellite launchings have created a "crisis of confidence" rather than a technological crisis.

Education Week

In a speech prepared for delivery to an American Education Week gathering, Norstad said:

"Our air and atomic advantages remain, and these, combined with the West's chain of air, sea and land bases encircling the world, will determine the military balance of power for some years to come."

He said Russia's launching of its moons was a "sobering example of the power of a dictatorship to concentrate resources toward a specific end." Sooner or later, Norstad said, the world "can expect the military implications" of the satellites to emerge.

"But this is not to say that their moons have overnight altered the universe," he said, declaring that the tremendous deterrent power possessed by the United States and its allies cannot "be eclipsed by a tiny man-made moon."

Will Add Authority

Norstad said "more and better nuclear weapons and advanced delivery systems" being developed by the West will add authority to the deterrent force now shielding western Europe from any sudden thrust from Soviet domains.

Norstad said that in a NATO strategy outline prepared before the first Soviet satellite was launched early last month, he credited the Russians with the expectation of launching a moon this year and within five years of perfecting a space vehicle able to gather and transmit military information.

Even after crediting the Soviets with weapons "which I am sure they wish they could have" within five years, Norstad said the West can maintain at tolerable cost through a cycle of radical technological change, a force sufficient to uphold the deterrent strategy and to give assurance to the NATO peoples."

Medal Is Presented

Nebraska Supreme Court Justice Edward F. Carter (left) receives the 1957 Merit of Honor Medal of LaSociete des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, the honor

Judge Carter Given Medal By 40 Et 8

Judge Edward F. Carter, Nebraska Supreme Court justice, was presented the 1957 Merit of Honor Medal of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux at its traditional Veterans Day luncheon at the Le-gionnaire Club Monday noon.

The award was presented to Judge Carter for his many years of service as president of Corn-husker Boys State and his leadership in the activity sponsored by the American Legion.

Since its beginning in 1939 the program has grown to national prominence.

Judge Carter, a former district judge, has been a member of the Supreme Court of Nebraska since 1935.

He has been president of the Cornhusker Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The medal is presented annually to a member of the Lincoln Post of the American Legion, who is not a member of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux.

Loran Cottrell is chef de gare (president) of the organization.

Kremlin Confirms Russ Withdrawal From Arms Talk

MOSCOW (INS)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko confirmed Monday night Russia's definite withdrawal from the U.N. Disarmament Commission and the commission's five nation subcommittee.

Gromyko, who had announced this move at the U.N. himself, said it was made necessary because the Disarmament subcommittee had "in fact accomplished not a single thing."

The Soviet diplomat told newsmen at a Swedish Embassy reception that his nation was prepared to join an 82-nation world-wide Disarmament Commission composed of the members of the U.N., and added:

"This is the only position since all the world must participate in the discussions. The committee must moreover be permanent and public so that the whole world knows all the time at which point the disarmament discussions stand."

Gromyko declared that Russia would have no objections to consultations among the big powers "on an unofficial level" inside such a new commission, saying:

"We can hold such big power consultations before lunch, during lunch and after lunch."

Mrs. Sittler Dies; Retired Nurse

Mrs. Meta Henrietta Sittler, 80, of 1159 Stillwater, a retired practical nurse, died Monday.

Born in West Bend, Wis., she had lived in Nebraska since 1918 and in Lincoln for the past five years.

She was a member of St. James Methodist Church and the WSCS. Surviving are a sister, Hattie Vetsch of Lincoln and several nieces and nephews.
